Controversy Between Manning and Gladstone.

AN IMPORTANT DISCUSSION.

The Subject Taken Up by the Herald's Contemporaries.

NEW IDEAS.

Infallibility Discussed by an American Divine.

The English Ex-Premier Taken to Task.

The Great Journalistic Triumph of the Month.

[From the Evening Mail.]

The HERALD yesterday astonished its readers with three columns of special despatches, containing the development of what may become one of the most important controversies of our time. It has arisen out of an anti-Papal manifesto issued by Mr. Gladstone, who has declared that acceptance of the dogma of Papal infallibility is inconsistent with good citizenship. To this declaration the Primate of the Roman Catholic Church in England, Archbishop Manning, has replied in a letter, not addressed to the London Times—as would be the natural mode of procedure—but to the editor of the HERALD, who first furnishes the letter to the London press, and then has the letter and the London press comments cabled to the HERALD, where they appeared yesterday, together with other despatches of various dates, altogether giving a complete history of the first chapter of a controversy which may yet agitate England more than any other present question.

Such a piece of journalistic enterprise deserves the commendation of the American press, as it must have excited the surprise of our London contemporaries. It suggests new possibilities in the way of journalistic effort, such as were not dreamed of when the cable was first laid beneath the Atlantic, and prepares us to anticipate the time when all the great questions that arise among civilized nations will be simultaneously discussed when the world's attention will be concentrated upon the same themes and utterances, and when the leaders of thought will be able to talk upon living themes to all the nations that are interested therein as to one vast audience. For this presage of a state of affairs hitherto unforeseen we are indebted to the HERALD, and as all its contemporaries joined in lauding its achievements in the Stanley expedition, so they ought now to give it credit for this last well-planned and thoroughly executed exploit, which is far more characteristically journalistic than that for which it has received so much credit.

While, however, we concede to the HERALD the praise that is clearly its due, we must say that it was indebted for its first information of the important controversy, which it has not only reported, but helped along, to the American Press Association. We suppose it relied upon the Associated Press for the transmission of such a piece of news as that the ex-Premier had reopened an old controversy. If so, its reliance was in vain. But it has already discovered, and had the frankness to acknowledge, that "we have observed that on several occasions recently the American Press Association has had better foreign despatches than the Associated Press, and its members certainly deserve credit for their enterprise, promptitude and accuracy."

The Question a Political One.

[From The Republic.]

Now, in this controversy between Gladstone and Manning it is perfectly idle to say that politics have nothing to do with religion. It is, perhaps, best to go to the heart of the question at once. It will be remembered that subsequent to the campaign against Austria in 1859 the Italians were led on by Cavour to form themselves into one powerful nation. To pass over the details of his short Neapolitan campaign, ending at Gaeta, and the "mediatizing" of Tuscany, &c., we may merely mention that the Pope was the sole obstacle in the way of this consummation. So far were politics from being kept distinct from religion in the question that the weightiest anathemas of the Church were hurled by the Pope at every one engaged in his dispossession, from King Victor Emmanuel down to the rawest recruit fighting in the ranks of his army.

Mr. Gladstone Making Political Capital.

[From the Commercial Advertiser.]

In England, indeed, Church and State are so intimately connected and intertwined together that it is hard to say whether it is the Church or the State which has the pre-eminence. British statesmen like Mr. Gladstone can attack sometimes the established Church when it makes an abuse of its privileges, but they will never think of depriving it of those very privileges and of its supremacy over Romanism and other religions practised in Great Britain. Mr. Gladstone has attempted to make political capital by his pamphlet, "The Vatican Decrees," and he tries to revive the ghost of Jesuitism, which is to be killed more victoriously by him than by Mr. Disraeli. But the liberal leader has seen his manœuvres defeated by the able answer made to him by Archbishop Manning, who demonstrated that all Mr. Gladstone's argumentation was already exploded and "no new matter."

Gladstone and Manning.

[From the Brooklyn Eagle.]

Travelling back about the number of years indicated by Dr. Manning, we should see among the most promising of the students at Oxford University, William Ewart Gladstone, of Christ Church, and Henry Edward Manning, of Balliol, afterward Fellow of Merton. The former was the son of Sir John Gladstone, a wealthy merchant; the latter of William Manning, head of the firm of Manning & Anderdon, still existing in London, a member of the House of Commons, and, at one time, Governor of the Bank of England. The boyhood of Gladstone had been spent at Eton; that of Manning at Harrow. The two became intimate at Oxford, each being a distinguished speaker at the famous Union Debating Club. In the race for academical honors both attained a first class in the classics and Gladstone a first in mathematics also. It was the period of that great reactionary movement in the English Church known as the High Church or "Tractarian" movement, a name derived from the series of "Tracts for the Times," to which John Henry Newman, Keble, Richard Hurrell Froude and Dr. Pusey were the chief contributors. Oxford, at that time, was what it has indeed been at most others, the university of mature saints and youthful sinners. But Gladstone and Manning were marked during their whole career by unusual gravity and strength of character. Each chose his way in life. Gladstone, under the auspices of Sir Robert Peel, entered the political arena; Manning took holy orders in the English Church, a profession which, in one of the most eloquent of his sermons before the University, he described as "full of calm peace in life and hope in death." Their friendship was based upon the rule of Cicero, "idem velle, idem nolle"—the same singleness and sincerity of purpose, the same high and unselfish aspirations, the same purity of life and culture of mind. Their friendship was not unlike in its depth and intimacy to that of David, the son of Jesse, with Jonathan, the son of Saul. Both were impressed with the revived churchmanship of the new movement, of which Gladstone became the chief parliamentary and Manning the chief pulpit defender. When Gladstone's eldest son was born Manning was its "godfather" in baptism.

Mr. Gladstone has Surrendered Himself.

[From The World.]

Mr. Gladstone knows that there is still extant and active in Great Britain a great body of worthy people who look upon the Pope and all his emissaries as no better than a brood of Satan. It is hard to believe that he can have had any other object in view in his recent manifesto than to persuade this great body of worthy people that the Pope really means mischief to their liberties, and that nothing but the return of the liberals to power can protect those liberties. If Mr. Gladstone really meant anything more than this, if he really meant to have all the world understand that he himself regards the pretensions to spiritual infallibility of the Roman Pontiff as politically dangerous to English freedom, and to the English State, then, indeed, has he surrendered himself bound hand and foot, as a lamb for the sacrifice, to his gifted ecclesiastical antagonist. For if the Catholic Church entertain the design which Mr. Gladstone, by implication at least, imputes to it, Mr. Gladstone's undertaking to defeat those designs by the publication of a political pamphlet would deserve to be ranked with the engagement rebuked in the "Year Books" of the man who promised to push Westminster Abbey into the Thames with his thumb!

"Higher Law."

[From the Evening Post.]

So long as the supremacy of the Pope remains a theory, it is a matter of religious belief which may not be properly interfered with. When it is interposed against the civil authority it is of no more force than the supremacy of individual conscience. By the way, it is a little singular that the newspapers which look most kindly on the "higher law" of Rome are those which regarded with the greatest horror the "higher law" of the late Secretary Seward.

THE INFALLIBILITY DOGMA.

What Does It Mean?—An Explanation from Rev. Mr. O'Reilly.

By the courtesy of Messrs. Appleton we are permitted to print the article from the advance sheets of the "Encyclopedia" upon the dogma of Papal infallibility. It is from the pen of the Rev. Bernard O'Reilly:—

Infallibility (later Latin infallibilis, not liable to be deceived, from in, privative, and falli, to be deceived, to err), a doctrine of the Roman Catholic Church, which attributes to that Church, as the divinely appointed teacher of mankind, and to the Roman Pontiff, as pastor of the whole Church, the privilege of being preserved from teaching error. Infallibility is not to be confounded with impeccability, which means immunity from sin. The special assistance of the Holy Spirit which preserves a person from error in the discharge of a certain office is a grace of the supernatural order, called by theologians gratia gratis data, a grace bestowed for the benefit of others than the recipient, such as the power of the priesthood bestowed on good and bad alike, and the gift of prophecy found in such men as Balaam and Caiaphas. It is thus distinguished from graces which are vouchsafed to sanctify their possessor, like that by which John the Baptist and Jeremiah were sanctified before their birth; a grace of this sort is called gratia gratum faciens. The privilege of infallibility is also to be distinguished from inspiration, because inspiration in many cases means a new revelation, whereas both the Church and the pontiff are only witnesses, teachers and judges of the revelation already made, and are merely preserved from error in guarding, expounding and defending the deposit of revelation. By the dogmatic decree of the Council of the Vatican the infallibility traditionally ascribed to the Church by Catholics is declared to have been directly and immediately conferred on St. Peter, and in him on his successors, the bishops of Rome. 1. Roman Catholic theologians ground the infallibility of the Church principally on the texts of Matt. xxviii., 19, 20:—"Go ye, therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, unto the end of the world;" and Mark, xvi., 15, 16—"Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." These words of Christ, constituting the great commission or charter of the Church, as they maintain, established her as the universal and perpetual teacher of mankind, gave into her keeping the deposit of the divine faith and law, declared her office to be that of sole interpreter of the same, bestowed on her the sole jurisdiction existing upon earth in matters of salvation over the reason and will of man, and assured her that in the discharge of this office she will have the Lord with her until the end of time. Faith in Christ through her teaching, and obedience to her in the fulfilment of her office, are required under pain of damnation. Now, it is held to be repugnant alike to the nature of God and to that of man that God should compel the assent of the reason and submission of the will to a teaching liable to error. The object or matter embraced by this infallible teaching is the whole body of revealed truth written and unwritten, and all that is so connected with it that without treating of it the Word of God could not be guarded, expounded and defended; such would be the declaring of the canon, authenticity, and true interpretation of Scripture, and the like. Further, the Church claims an infallible guidance in discerning and defining all matters which are opposed to revelation; for, it is argued, she could not discharge her office of teacher of mankind unless she were able to proscribe with infallible certainty all doctrines at variance with the Word of God. Hence the direct object of the infallibility of the Church is the revelation or Word of God, and the indirect object is whatever is necessary for its exposition and defence, or contrary to the law of faith and morality. 2. Pontifical infallibility is thus defined in chapter 4 of the constitution Pastor æternus, July 18, 1870:—"We teach and define that it is a dogma divinely revealed that the Roman Pontiff, when he speaks ex cathedra, that is when, in discharge of the office of pastor and doctor of all Christians by virtue of his supreme authority, he defines a doctrine regarding faith and morals to be held by the universal Church, by the divine assistance promised to him in blessed Peter, is possessed of that infallibility with which the divine Redeemer willed that His Church should be endowed for defining doctrines regarding faith and morals; and that, therefore, such definitions of the Roman pontiffs are irreformable of themselves and not by the consent of the Church." This definition declares that the Pope is infallible when speaking from his seat of authority, in discharge of his office of pastor and teacher of the entire Christian fold, and challenging the assent of the universal Church. The doctrinal point defined or finally decided must relate to faith and morals, and in such definitions, it is declared, he is divinely guided by virtue of the promises made to him in the person of Peter. This infallibility of the Pontiff has the same extension as the doctrinal office of the Church, and the final judgments pronounced in its exercise are in themselves irreformable or irreversible, even before the Church has accepted them. The definition limits the infallibility and the divine assistance which secures it to the Pope's official acts as pastor and doctor of all Christians. It thus excludes all his acts as a private person, doctor, theologian, local bishop, or ruler. He is exempt from error in only one capacity, that is, when as teacher of the whole Church in faith and morals he speaks from the chair of Peter. The "phrase doctrine of faith and morals" signifies the whole revealed Word of God, the whole way of salvation through faith, or the whole supernatural order with all that is necessary to the salvation of mankind through Jesus Christ. The efficient cause of this infallibility or immunity from error is declared to be the divine assistance promised to Peter and in Peter to his successors. This, it is asserted by Catholic theologians, is contained explicitly in the words of Christ to Peter, Luke, xxii., 32—"I have prayed for thee that thy faith fail not, and when thou art converted strengthen thy brethren;" and implicitly in Matthew, xvi., 18—"And I say also unto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." The assistance thus promised and its effect are a divine ordinance. It is further affirmed that before the definition of the Vatican Council the infallibility of the Pontiff was a doctrine revealed by God, delivered by the constant tradition of the Church, recognized in Ecumenical Councils, presupposed by the acts of the Pontiff in all ages, taught by all the saints, defended by every religious order, and by every theological school except the Gallican, and in that school only disputed by a numerical minority and during one period of its history, and believed, at least implicitly, by all Catholics. The definition, Catholics believe, has added nothing to the intrinsic certainty of this doctrine, which is derived from revelation. It has only added the extrinsic certainty of universal promulgation, binding the whole Church to believe the dogma explicitly. The doctrine of pontifical infallibility, theologically considered, is intimately connected with the pontifical supremacy; and, considered historically, it is seen that from the exercise of the supremacy was gradually evolved and finally asserted the prerogative of infallibility. The bishops of Rome at a very early period claimed a supreme and final authority in deciding all ecclesiastical disputes; and this claim they founded on the fact of the See of Rome being the seat of Peter's authority, and of their being his successors with supreme jurisdiction over the entire Church. On the other hand, the opposition to the exercise of this supremacy forms a parallel and continuous record in the early Church down to the consummation of the Photian schism. Thus, in the ante-Nicene period Pope Victor I. (about 193) claimed to decide finally the controversy about the proper day for celebrating Easter, and excommunicated the Asiatic churches which refused to abide by his decision; and Pope Stephen I. (253-257) decided against St. Cyprian and the churches of northern Africa, that baptism performed by heretics should not be repeated, and annulled the sentence of a Spanish synod against two bishops. But the decision of Victor was set aside by the Asiatic bishops; and in like manner the bishops of Africa and Spain persisted in upholding their own local customs and established rights. Earlier still Tertullian, in his treatise De Pudicitia, complained that the Roman pontiff issued peremptory edicts, as if he were "bishop of bishops." From the time of Constantine the Great this exercise of supremacy, and the right on which it was founded were brought into greater prominence by the part taken by the Christian Emperors in convening councils and enforcing their decrees, by the conflicts which occurred between the councils themselves and the authority of the popes, and by the contests for pre-eminence waged by the See of Constantinople with the patriarchal sees of the East, and with Rome herself. Thus Leo the Great received the appeal of Celidonius, Bishop of Besançon, deposed by Hillary of Poitiers, and restored him to his see; thus, also, it is maintained his doctrinal letter was received as a final decision by the Council of Chalcedon (451). Another document quoted by ultramontane theologians as pointing to an exercise of supremacy is a letter of Pope Gelasius, in 493, in which it is said:—"The canons themselves refer the appeal of the whole Church to the examination of this chair. They decree that from it there is no further appeal, and by it the whole Church is judged; it goes for judgment to none, nor can its judgment be judged, nor its sentence reversed." (Labbe, vol. iv., p. 1,169.) Against this claim of deciding all ecclesiastical causes without appeal, thus distinctly formulated in the fifth century, is quoted the recently established fact of the Roman presbyter St. Hippolytus having been at the time of his death in opposition to the Pope, his superior, as well as the instances in which popes fell into heresy or encouraged heretical opinions. Such were the cases of Zozimus, who commended the Pelagian teaching of Celestius; Julian, who affirmed the orthodoxy of the Sabellian Marcellus of Ancyra; Liberius, who subscribed (359) to the Arian creed of Rimini; Vigilius (547), who contradicted himself thrice on a question of faith; and Honorius, who lent the whole weight of his authority (633) to the support of the nascent Monothelite heresy, and was solemnly excommunicated by an ecumenical council for doing so. Still the bishops of Rome persisted in their claims, while in the East the resistance to them grew as the patriarchs of Constantinople rose in power and influence among the Eastern hierarchy, until the conflict of jurisdiction ended (879) in the disruption of Christendom. In Western Europe the primacy of the Roman bishops continued to be universally acknowledged after the separation of the East and West; but their personal infallibility was never maintained in a formal theological thesis till the time of Thomas Aquinas. He however does not employ the term infallibility; he says that the same security from error in teaching, judging and determining all that pertains to faith, which is ascribed to the church, belongs also to the Roman pontiff, by virtue of the promise made to Peter. The thesis, thus placed in distinct form before the great theological schools of Europe, soon acquired increased definiteness and interest from the contests between temporal princes and the popes, and between rival claimants for the papacy and the ecclesiastical assemblies convened to heal the great western schism. Philip the Fair in 1303 declared his intention of calling a general council to judge Pope Boniface VIII. In the Council of Constance, where the French clergy largely predominated, the French theologians D'Ailly and Gerson proposed the framing of a decree declaring an ecumenical council superior to the pope. In the Council of Basel, soon afterward, this superiority was urged against Eugenius IV., particularly after he had dissolved that body. The superiority of œcumenical councils to Papal authority was embodied in the pragmatic sanction of Bourges in 1438, both as a theological maxim and as a rule of national jurisprudence. Thenceforward the theologians in France who maintained this superiority were called Gallicans and their opponents ultramontanes. Gallicanism, considered as a system of jurisprudence and theological doctrine, comprised the liberties or franchises of the Gallican Church and the peculiar tenets of its churchmen with regard to the nature and limits of the pontifical supremacy. These Gallican franchises were understood in one sense by the churchmen and in quite another by French magistrates. In reality they affirmed that the Pope had no right, by virtue of his supremacy, to interfere with the King in the holding of his crown or the lawful exercise of his power; that the election of ecclesiastical dignitaries, the collation of benefices and the disposition of their revenues, the imposition and collection of taxes on church property, belonged by inherent right and custom exclusively to the Church of France, under the protection of the King. These franchises, and the peculiar doctrine of the Gallican Church concerning the Pope's inferiority to a general council, were formulated in six articles presented by the Sorbonne to Louis XIV., May 8, 1663, which were reaffirmed with greater solemnity in 1682. The famous "four articles" then proclaimed by the assembled clergy, besides the absolute independence of the civil power, declared that the plenitude of power in spirituals possessed by the successors of St. Peter is to be limited by the decrees of the Council of Constance, which have ever been in force in the Gallican Church; that the use of the Pope's apostolic power is to be regulated by the canons, and within the kingdom of France by the received rules, customs and constitutions; and that, although the Pope has the chief authority in questions of faith, and his decrees regard all the churches, and each church in particular, nevertheless his judgment is not irreformable until the consent of the whole Church supervenes. The whole question of infallibility continued to be vehemently discussed by Jesuits and Jansenists, Gallicans and ultramontanes, down to the French Revolution. When public worship was restored by Bonaparte, the concordat concluded with him by Pius VII. abolished the old French hierarchy with all its privileges, and established new sees and new ecclesiastical dioceses. But Bonaparte inserted in the concordat, on its publication, what is known as the "organic articles," which, among other things, reaffirmed the offensive portion of the declaration of 1682. This was maintained as a law of the land and a rule of state policy through every change of government, although Gallicanism itself was constantly on the wane. In 1867 it was resolved by Pius IX. and the bishops assembled in Rome that an œcumenical council should be convened without delay; and it soon became generally known that one of the doctrinal questions to be decided in the council was that of pontifical infallibility. A warm discussion immediately began as to the opportuneness as well as the possibility of such a definition. Conspicuous among the opponents of the contemplated measure was Dr. Döllinger, of Munich, and among its promoters Archbishop Manning, of London. The Jesuits, always the most strenuous advocates of papal prerogative, used all their influence to secure the definition. In France the bishops were divided; in England, Ireland, the United States, Germany and Austria, a majority would have preferred delay; but Italy and Spain were for instant definition. Among the European governments a strong diplomatic effort, originating with Bavaria and seconded by France, was made to dissuade the court of Rome from a step deemed full of danger. On December 8, 1869, the council was opened by Pius IX. in the Vatican Basilica of St. Peter's. A first doctrinal constitution on Catholic faith having been elaborated and accepted, was officially proclaimed April 24, 1870. Then began the discussion of a second constitution "on the Church," ending with the decree on pontifical infallibility. Outside the council itself, the dogma, in its theological and historical aspect and its bearing on the relation of the Church to civil governments, was vehemently discussed in the press. A correspondence between Bishop Dupanloup and Archbishop Manning, and the publication of an exhaustive Gallican argument by M. Maret, Bishop of Sura, had created much interest just before the opening of the council, and this was largely increased by the appearance during its sittings of a series of letters in the Augsburg Allgemeine Zeitung, signed "Janus," afterward published in book form with the title of "The Pope and the Council." (See Döllinger.) Another series of letters from Rome were printed in England from the pen of "Quirinus;" while two more issued from the French press entitled "Ce Qui se Passe au Concile" and "La Dernière Heure du Concile." Within the Council itself every portion of the schema or draught was warmly discussed. On July 11 the schema of the chapter on infallibility was discussed in detail and adopted in a general congregation; and the whole schema was put to the vote in another congregation held on the 13th. Each prelate voted placet, if content; placet juxta modum, if only content with a part; or non placet, if not content. The register showed 451 as voting placet, 62 placet juxta modum and 88 non placet. On July 18, in solemn session, 534 prelates answered placet, 2 non placet and 65 were absent, of whom a majority did not wish to vote favorably.—See Archbishop Manning's "Petri Privilegium" (London, 1871) and "The Pope and the Council," by Janus (Boston, 1870). GLADSTONE VS. NO POPERY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Mr. Gladstone's attack upon the Church of Rome appears to be a climax to the inconsistencies and eccentricities of that erratic statesman. Starting in life "the rising hope of those unbending tories," we witnessed him distance even the whigs in liberalism, and eventually become the chief of the most advanced radicals in the House of Commons. Such inconsistency would suffice for most men, but the caprice exhibited in his extreme religious opinions combine to form a picture of English statesmanship but too common during the present century, of which the lives of the late Lord Derby, Peel, Graham and the present Premier offer striking instances.

The cry of "No Popery" in England has become so stale and has been raised so often for political effect that our suspicions in the present outburst are naturally aroused, and as the present condition of Mr. Gladstone's mind can be best gauged by a reference to his published opinions, we offer the following extracts:—

In 1839 Mr. Gladstone, then member for Newark, published a work entitled, "The State in its Relations with the Church," the whole theory of which, rested on the proposition that one of the chief ends of all governments was the propagation of religious truth, and he naturally starts with the doctrine that every state, whatever its political government, is bound by moral law to maintain and propagate a fixed religion. Mr. Gladstone says, "Wherever there is power in the universe that power is the property of God, the King of that universe. The powers therefore that dwell in individuals, acting as a government, can only be secured for right uses by applying to them a religion"—his reasons for this proposition being "because the governing body of a state is composed of individual men, and they being appointed to act in a definite capacity must sanction their acts done in that capacity by the offices of religion, otherwise their acts would not be acceptable to God, but sinful and punishable in themselves." "Statesmen must be worshipping men; their acts, powers and energy being all public, they must sanctify their acts, not only by private prayer, but they must offer prayer in their public capacity." "To this agency there must be attached a religion; the governors being the reasoning agents of the nation this religion must be that of the conscience of the government."

The fact that a religion is false does not, in Mr. Gladstone's opinion, "diminish the government's obligation to enforce it." I do not scruple to affirm that if a Mahometan conscientiously believes his religion to come from God and to teach divine truth he must and ought to desire its extension, and to use all proper and legitimate means, and if he is a prince he should count as legitimate whatever influence or funds he may lawfully have at his disposal."

The last extract, which reads like one from Machiavelli's works, is a veritable exposition of Mr. Gladstone's views on "Church and State."

Well might Lord Macaulay remark that the doctrines contained in this book were false and highly pernicious, and if put in force would be destructive to society. Who would believe that the hand which indited the above lines wrote the bill by which the Established Church in one of the chief sections of his own country was destroyed forever, he himself having organized the measure and brought to bear the full weight of his high position to make it law?

In view of such inconsistency of conduct his present or future behavior should cause little surprise, and if his acts are attributed to expediency rather than to fixed principles he has himself only to blame.

Again, Mr. Gladstone's assumption of the rôle of champion of the English Church appears to be one of the most heartless pieces of political poaching we have witnessed for some time; the indignation of Mr. Disraeli for such an encroachment of his manorial right must be very intense and amusing to behold.

If the championship of the Established Church rests with any one party it surely must be with the conservatives. During the long retirement from official position in the cold shade of the opposition benches, weak and in a minority, they fought the Irish Church bill through all its stages; baffled and outvoted they still persevered, and ceased only their opposition when the bill was carried in their very teeth.

All must admit that the conservative party hold the right by prescription to engrave on their banners the old watch cry of "Church and State," and it appears a burlesque of circumstances to find Mr. Gladstone fresh from the slaughter of the Church in Ireland taking the sister establishment under his protection, and Mr. Disraeli can justly accuse his rival of having fired a charge at a bird that he had shot long ago.

It may be remembered that Mr. Disraeli played a similar trick upon Mr. Gladstone in respect to the reform question. Is the latter now paying off an old score? When Mr. Gladstone was defeated on his Reform bill and resigned, the conservatives, taking the reins of government, were forced under the circumstances to bring in a Reform bill of their own. Such a measure, framed under the influence of the old tory members of the Cabinet, was anticipated with some relish by the liberal members, who expected an easy victory. To the chagrin of Mr. Gladstone a Reform bill was produced by Mr Disraeli, which was as much in advance of Gladstone's as Mr. Gladstone's was of the old bill in 1832.

Utterly outflanked, Mr. Gladstone was obliged to put his own bill in the fire and give his unwilling assistance to the rival measure.

Has Mr. Gladstone, in the present cry of "No Popery," followed Mr. Disraeli's tactics? Is it an attempt of the liberals to spike the conservatives' biggest gun, or is it a personal matter? Has he given one more turn to his mental kaleidoscope? If so, in what character will he next present himself? Quite possibly in that indicated in the rumors mentioned in our telegram of yesterday—an old English Catholic. One thing is clear, that the assumption of that character would be tantamount to an abdication of his position as leader of the liberal party.

Whatever the circumstances are of the cry of "No Popery" it is a perfectly senseless one. The Roman Catholics are not the worst enemies of the Established Church. They are still in a great minority, and the powerful body of low churchmen and dissenters will ever form a bulwark against their encroachment. The real enemies of the English Established Church are within it and not without. The corrupt influences of its hierarchy continue in full force, pluralities of living are as notorious as they are mischievous, while the open sale of livings to the highest bidder, with no regard to the parishioners, whose number is mentioned in the advertisement, as a Russian would describe the number of serfs and the gross inequality of remuneration, are other evils which require redress. Goldsmith's village preacher, "Passing rich with forty pounds per year" still exists, while others are drawing incomes equal to that of a Cabinet Minister, living sumptuously away from their living, while some poor hired hack drawls through the service for a mean consideration. These are the real enemies of the Church of England. Let the frauds we have indicated be redressed, and the fear of Popery will not exist.

"PRUDENTIUS" AND PANTHEISM.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13, 1874.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

The critic who in last Sunday's HERALD called attention to the pantheism distinctly taught in the philosophical principles of "Prudentius" may bear in mind that his conclusion was accepted, and had been already arrived at in literary circles long before he published his remarks in your paper. Some of the best philosophers of the Catholic Church have clearly shown that the school to which "Prudentius" evidently belongs bases its teaching upon principles that necessarily lead to pantheism. It is true, indeed, that these conclusions, as truly pantheistic as those of the profound and sincere Spinosa, are disclaimed by their authors. But when they start from Ens, pure being, as their primum philosophicum, no artificial logic or clever ratiocination can save them from falling into the pit of the deepest pantheism. Hence the ingenious "Prudentius" will be ingenuous enough to admit the logical consequence of his principles. These principles are taught in all the Catholic schools and colleges conducted by the members of a religious order which claims to represent the true doctrines of the Church. "Prudentius" must have been for a long time imbued with the principles of their system. The doctrine of intermediary ideas once admitted there are no means left to avoid pantheism, and ulterially nihilism. There is, of course, a Christian pantheism which "Prudentius," very likely holds, instead of the frigid, barren system generally known by that name. And even the religious order above referred to professedly reject the imputation of admitting pantheistic conclusions. They even procured the condemnation of seven propositions said to have been deduced from the works of an ontological professor of Louvain, in Rome, in 1861. The acute and erudite "Prudentius" will, however, very probably, make out a very plausible if not a very convincing case against your learned correspondent of last Sunday.

A FUNERAL SENSATION.

A Supposed Corpse in Westchester County Comes to Life After Being on Ice for Three Days—The Subject Still Alive.

A most remarkable instance of a supposed corpse having been found to possess signs of animation, and really being restored to life after lying on ice for three days, has just transpired at Yonkers, Westchester county. It appears that a seven-year-old child of a machinist named Miller, living on Riverdale avenue, in the city above mentioned, having been in delicate health almost from the time of its birth, was attacked by an unusually severe fit of illness last Thursday morning. A physician was called in, and he, after apparently satisfying himself as to the course of treatment to be adopted, prescribed for the little one, and on leaving intimated that he would call again in the afternoon. It is understood that the medicine prescribed was a powerful opiate; but, whether this was the case or not, it is asserted that when the medical man called in the afternoon a glance at his late patient induced him to pronounce the child dead. The services of an undertaker were, of course, at once procured, and by him the supposed corpse was tenderly prepared for the last rites and then placed in an ice coffin until the usual time for interment should have elapsed.

A wake was accordingly held, and mourning relatives and friends "sat up" with the body day and night until Sunday afternoon, the time announced for the funeral. Friends of the family had gathered in considerable numbers to assist in paying their tribute of respect to the sorrowing parents, and almost everything being in readiness for the committal of "dust to dust," the undertaker and his assistant, on transferring the body from the ice coffin to the casket in which it was about to be interred, were struck with astonishment at the peculiar appearance of the remains. It was noticed that there was a marked absence of rigor mortis, or that stiffness which is an inseparable concomitant of departed life. This discovery produced an indescribably painful state of anxiety to the parents, while the half frightened guests crowded around the ambiguous corpse, suggesting various means of testing whether the child was really alive or dead. Three or four physicians were sent for, and they at once commenced a thorough search for any lingering evidence of vitality that might remain in the subject, resorting, among other means, to that of tying a cord tightly on the fingers, whereby it was seen that the nails changed color, plainly indicating that the heart had not ceased to perform its all-important functions. When it became apparent that there was life in the child the most approved manner of administering restoratives was resorted to, and accordingly a more palpable degree of vitality was produced, although it is doubtful if the little one, who was so providentially rescued from a living tomb, can long survive the protracted freezing ordeal through which it has passed. The child was still alive last evening.

THE DEATH OF PILOT CLARK.

At a meeting of the committeee of the Sandy Hook pilots the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:—

Clark, and deeply regret his loss; that we bow with reverence to the will of the Almighty in His all-wise providence in taking him from our midst, and that we tender his family our deepfelt sympathy in this their sudden and sad bereavement.

Resolved, That the above preamble and resolutions be entered on the minutes, and a copy thereof forwarded to the family of our late associate.

THE LOCK-OUT.

Four Thousand 'Longshoremen Deprive Themselves of Work by Striking.

THE PEACE THREATENED.

Both Sides Determined to Hold Out to the Last.

A BODY OF ITALIANS ATTACKED.

The strike of the 'longshoremen commenced yesterday morning and will, in all probability, be a movement of some duration, as both the steamship companies and the men appear to be determined to hold out. The 'longshoremen belonging to societies Nos. 1, 2 and 3 in New York and No. 1 in Brooklyn are all unanimous in resisting what they claim is an unfair reduction of their wages, and are determined to hold out to the last. The societies have about $70,000 in the treasury, and as most of the men have some little money they expect to keep body and soul alive for some time. They all appear to condemn the firm of stevedores known as the Walsh Brothers and claim that they are at the bottom of the whole move, alleging that they are trying to knock down the wages in order to get even for some very low contracts they made with the steamship companies.

ORDERLY BEHAVIOR OF THE MEN.

On the whole there are about 10,000 men on strike, and all are behaving themselves like good citizens in a quiet and respectable manner. At an early hour this morning they took up positions at their usual corners on the North River front and when asked to go to work said they would, at the old rate of wages, but declined when they were told of the twenty-five per cent reduction. Walsh then made strenuous efforts to get some help, and finally succeeded in putting on two or three gangs on the Colon, the Pacific Mail steamer just arrived from Panama. The new hands were not very lively at work, and took about twice the time over their jobs that the regular 'longshoremen would have done it in.

One young man, who looked as if he had seen better times, said, "I am not accustomed to this work, having been educated for the Church, but I hope in a few days to be able to handle a bale of cotton as well as the rest of them. I do not like to take bread out of other men's mouths, but when one has a wife and children to take care of, and nothing to eat, we feel glad to embrace any opportunity of earning a dollar."

FALSE ECONOMY.

Some lines, like the State line to Glasgow, the Merchants' Steamship Company and a few others, are still paying the wages, and one of the foremen on that dock said he thought it was economy for the Merchants' to employ the old hands, as they could do the work in one hundred per cent less time, and the wages of the new hands were only reduced twenty-five per cent. The Old Dominion Steamship Company and Clyde lines are working all kinds of laborers that come along, and have certainly engaged a motley crew. Some of them are mere boys, and a few Italians have also gone to work.

The society men on the North River front have all been quiet and orderly during the day, and an intoxicated man was a rare sight among them. They stand about their old docks ready to resume work at a moment's notice when the steamship companies come back to old prices. The following steamship lines are the prime movers in the reduction:—Cunard line, Inman line, White Star line, National line, Anchor line, Havana line, Liverpool and Liverpool and Great Western Steamship Company, Pacific Mail Steamship Company, North German Lloyds, Savannah line, General Transatlantic Company, Mexican line, and Bristol line.

THE STEVEDORES' POINT OF VIEW.

Talking with Mr. Peter H. Walsh, the head of the firm of Walsh Brothers, he said that they were forced to make this reduction as the steamship companies had informed them that they were going to cut down their contracts twenty-five per cent. He felt satisfied that the 'longshoremen would soon resume work, as there were plenty of men to be had who would be glad to work for twenty cents per hour. He said he was now working men at the reduced prices for five companies and had no doubt that in another day he would have more applications for work than he would know what to do with.

The officers of the different steamship companies have decided upon carrying through this reduction in wages. They claim that they are all losing money, and, in fact, many of them are only running half their boats. Freights are also very low at present, especially in cotton, which can now be shipped from New York to Liverpool for a little over a cent a pound.

OTHER REASONS GIVEN.

Passenger rates have also gone down, and, in a word, none of the steamship companies are making any money. Merchants in the Southern business say that vessels leave New York for the South about one-quarter freighted and return with an average of from two to five hundred bales of cotton, while they have capacity for eighteen hundred to two thousand. They all acknowledge that this movement is made entirely by them, and that the stevedores have nothing at all to do with it, except that as they have cut down the contracts twenty-five per cent the stevedores will naturally have to do the same. They claim that the wages of mechanics have been decreased all through the country, and that thirty cents per hour or $3 per day is fair wages for doing ordinary labor.

ALONG THE EAST RIVER FRONT

there were comparatively few indications of the lock-out. Probably the strongest evidence that something unusual was disturbing the ordinary quietude of Gotham was the presence of a considerable number of policemen at most of the principal wharves where trouble was anticipated. All such expectations, however, were doomed to disappointment, for the day passed without any serious breach of the peace. The 'longshoremen on the East River front, who were locked out, were evidently also determined to gain the sympathy of the public at large by their moderation and peaceful conduct. "Although these rich steamship companies want to take the bread from our dear little children and compel us to go in rags during the winter," said a 'longshoreman of more than ordinary intelligence, in South street yesterday, "while their agents are driving about in grand carriages and spend as much on one meal as we do on our living in a month, we shall keep the peace and give them no opportunity to have us arrested by the police." This seemed to be the general sentiment, though often expressed in ruder form, among all the 'longshoremen on the East River front. The consequence was that the police, who stood about at the wharf entrances in little knots of two and three, had little to do except to chat and to entertain one another. Their clubs rested peacefully in their hands or by their sides, more especially as they became soon informed of the peaceful disposition of the locked-out 'longshoremen.

THE SAILING VESSELS' 'LONGSHOREMEN.

The stevedores in charge of the sailing vessels were all paying the old rates, none of these lines having entered the combination of steamship companies. They said that they did not intend to join the combination as they did not consider the wages excessive, and as their men did the work well, which, after all, was the main point. One or two hinted that they would probably reduce the rates if the movement of the steamship companies turned out a success; but, meanwhile, they were waiting for the issue, and on this their action would depend. As matters look now, the 'longshoremen employed for sailing vessels will continue to receive their former rates of pay.

The only wharf on the East River front which was deserted by the regular 'longshoremen was pier 18, occupied by the New York and Bristol Steamship Company. Mr. Morgan, the agent, said that the ship's crew (the Arragon is the name of the vessel which was unloaded yesterday) and such other chance laborers as the stevedore had obtained from other sources would probably be able to do the work. He saw no reason why the steamship companies should pay forty cents an hour for the same work for which the railway companies—the Pennsylvania, Grand Central and others—were only paying seventeen and a half cents an hour. The crew, firemen and other "deck hands" were glad to do the work for an extra compensation of sixteen cents an hour, and they

as they still retained some of their old but non-society foremen, and as the officers of the ship were, of course, also perfectly competent to stow cargo. He was perfectly aware that the crew could not unload the ship so quickly as his regular force of 'longshoremen, but would only be able to tell the amount of profits resulting from the new arrangement after making up his accounts when the ship had sailed. One very important point mentioned by Mr. Morgan was the fact that the Italian organization had offered to supply all the laborers that were wanted at five cents less than even the proposed rates, i. e., at twenty-five cents for day work and forty cents for night work. When asked as to his opinion of the efficiency of Italians, Mr. Morgan replied that he considered those coming from the north—from Lombardy and other northern portions of the Italian kingdom—quite as good, but that Neapolitans were probably not so generally liked as 'longshoremen. However, the work required no special aptitude, and any strong, able-bodied man, who was not afraid to take hold of boxes and barrels, could do it satisfactorily. It was his opinion that the men who are locked out only worked three or four days and amused themselves during the remainder of the week, earning, as they did, as much in these three or four days as other laborers who worked every day at $2. Mr. Morgan estimated the number of 'longshoremen locked out by his firm at about 100, and if only forty were at work at one time the new plan would represent a saving of $40 per day or $14,000 a year (the saving per day, reckoning ten hours' work, would be $1 on each 'longshoreman). Mr. Morgan thought that this was a saving which was not to be despised by anybody.

THE COMBINATION NOT IN EARNEST.

The only other company on the East River front who had joined the combination was the Savannah Steamship Company at pier 16. Here the laborers were at work, as usual, most of them being non-society men. Mr. Hall, the stevedore, said that his policy had always been to employ, for the greater part, non-society men, as he did not want to be dictated to by any organization of 'longshoremen. He refused to say how much he was paying his men, as he took them at all sorts of rates, just as he could get them. He did not think the Italian society could supply enough 'longshoremen to meet the demand, and was also of the opinion that they would not be so effective as the class of men now employed. It seemed to him as though the combination of steamship companies were scarcely in earnest, for, if they were, they would certainly advertise for 'longshoremen, which, thus far, they had failed to do. Hence he doubted the successful issue of the movement, fearing, as he did, that some of the members of the combination would recede from the determined position which they had taken.

The 'longshoremen hold a meeting to-morrow night at No. 76 Varick street.

Italians Attacked.

Owing to the strike of the 'longshoremen the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, like many others, find themselves without proper assistance in loading and unloading their vessels. Yesterday the Colon arrived from California with a large freight, and as soon as she was made fast a gang of 'longshoremen to the number of about 200 assembled on the dock and demanded to be set at work at the old rates. This was at once refused by the agent in charge, who instructed his stevedores to employ outside labor wherever it could be found. Accordingly, some fifty or sixty Italians were procured, and at half-past nine o'clock last evening proceeded down Canal street toward the docks. When near Hudson street they were attacked by the 'longshoremen, who threw rocks and bricks right and left, and used clubs and their horny fists with the utmost carelessness as regards consequences.

The Italians made a stand at first, but seeing this was useless, and not being much accustomed to the "striking ways" of their assailants, they took to their heels, and were soon running helter skelter through the street like a flock of sheep with wolves in pursuit. Word was immediately sent to Captain Murphy, of the Twenty-eighth precinct, who ordered out his entire reserve force, and soon succeeded in quelling the turbulent spirit among the rioters. An effort was then made to get the sons of sunny Italy once more together, but their rout had been so complete that but eleven of the original gang of nearly sixty were found. These Captain Murphy escorted to the pier to which the Colon was moored, and detailed a sufficient force of officers to protect them in their nocturnal labors. Up to a late hour last night no further disturbance was reported, the strikers evidently having arrived at the conclusion that the police mean business and will not be trifled with. No casualties were reported by the police, although several Italians are known to have been quite severely injured.

Assault by 'Longshoremen.

Some 'longshoremen attacked Charles Shaw, of No. 308 East Twenty-sixth street, yesterday afternoon, at the corner of Greenwich and Spring streets. In the morning Shaw took some men to pier 42, North River, to work in the places of the 'longshoremen. As he was returning home at three o'clock he was chased by some of the angered men who are now unemployed, and one of them threw a stone which wounded him slightly over the eye. He took refuge from his assailants in a liquor store at the corner of Spring and Washington streets, and from there the police escorted him to the Twenty-eighth precinct station house, where his hurt was dressed.

The 'Longshoremen in Brooklyn made no belligerent demonstration whatever yesterday, but worked cheerily along the piers and wharves, from Red Hook to Greenpoint, at the old rates of forty cents per hour. The stevedores did not intimate that it was their intention to reduce the wages as their craft had done in New York; but the men declared, when spoken to on the subject, that they would not submit to a reduction of a penny. It is probable that the employers will follow, however, the example set on this side of the river, and the men will be compelled either to accept the terms or go idle. The police were held in reserve throughout the day at the several precinct station houses.

The Cunard Company Remaining Firm Against the Demands of the Men.

Mr. J. M. Welsh, the superintendent of the Cunard Dock, having been notified by the 'Longshoremen's Association that the men would not work at the new rates, thirty cents an hour, has made arrangements to employ a new staff, with competent overseers. Several gangs have offered themselves at twenty-five cents an hour. Mr. Welsh, however, notified the committee of the strikers that he would prefer the old hands at thirty cents, as they could perform the work more satisfactorily. The association will not accept the new situation and Mr. Welsh says the Cunard Company are prepared to prove that they can get along without them. The new gangs will not be required before Thursday. In the meantime the strikers have sent a committee to confer with the associations in New York and Hoboken. Up to the present the latter have advised them to stand firm. With so much determination manifested on both sides there is no probability of an early adjustment of the difficulties. Many of the men are in favor of calling a public meeting in which they will appeal for sympathy by presenting their claims and deserts in a true light to the people of Jersey City.

The Strike in Hoboken.

The long impending strike of the Hoboken branch of the 'Longshoremen's Association commenced yesterday morning. Although there was only one of the steamship companies (the Bremen) that refused to accede to the laborers' demands the men nevertheless declined to work for any until their demands were fully granted. It is thought, however, that they will work for the companies that have stood by them up to the present. The men stood or sat in groups in the vicinity of the docks throughout the day, and were very orderly and undemonstrative. The Bremen Company refuses thus far to pay them more than thirty cents an hour; but it is not improbable that they may ultimately redeem the pledge they gave the President of the 'Longshoremen's Association not long since, to the effect that they would never reduce the rate of wages as long as the association existed.

MEETING OF COOPERS.

Cooper's Union No. 2 held a meeting last night. Admission was denied all strangers, but the loud sounding echoes from within gave evidence of the workings of eloquent organs on a familiar subject. The meeting over, the secrecy was ended, outsiders were allowed in, and Mr. Walsh, the Deputy President, explained that the union intended to continue the lock-out, if necessary, to February. The employers were merely anxious to break up the union, and that the men would resist with all their might. As only about half the entire number of bosses were interested in the present attempt to destroy the workmen's association, the others having no sympathy with the movement, Mr. Walsh considered success must remain with the men.

ST. JOHN'S GUILD.

Whoever wishes to see a busy scene, wherein there is more of pleasantness than usually falls upon busy places, should call on a Monday evening at the rooms of St. John's Guild in Varick street.

Last night over fifty ladies were gathered there, and the hum and click of more than a score of sewing machines fell upon the ear of the passer-by in the street as a sort of monotonous undertone to the laughter that rippled over it, and the sounds of merry, happy voices in chorus. These ladies represent the highest social elements of the city. It is nothing unusual to witness in these rooms ladies whose income is greater than that of the President of the United States sewing upon thick woollen stuffs for children and for aged people. The rooms are brilliantly lighted, and a more merry and witty assemblage could scarcely be met with in the metropolis.

Delegations are always present from the "Sewers and Reapers," the "Helping Hand" and the "Dorcas" societies, auxiliaries of the Guild, as well as from the newly formed ward societies.

The amount of work performed at these gatherings is simply astonishing. Tables are piled high with garments of every description, and in exhibiting them the ladies show a pardonable pride in calling attention to the neat and thorough workmanship displayed in making them. In fact, from the large additions offered to the stock of the Clothing Bureau on each Monday evening, one would be led to suspect that these ladies devote more hours of each day at home to the work of the Guild than they care to make known to the general public.

THE LADIES' BOARD OF MISSIONS.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Board of Presbyterian Missions was held yesterday afternoon in University church, Washington square. There was a good attendance. Dr. Booth presided. An address was delivered, after the transaction of official business, by Professor Dodge, who has recently returned from India and China. He gave some interesting particulars in reference to the moral and spiritual condition of the native women of these countries.

THE COURTS.

The Sullivan-Mullaney Conviction and Sentence.

BANK STOCKHOLDERS

Charge of Attempted Fraud on the Custom House.

A Number of Suits Against the City.

Frederick Otto Semonson was charged yesterday before Commissioner Shields with passing a counterfeit two dollar bill upon one of the female attendants at the Pacific Garden, in the Bowery. He was at once discharged, as it turned out that the bill was good. A policeman had on the girl's complaint locked up the defendant in jail from Sunday until yesterday.

In the case of Sullivan, tried yesterday in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, for shooting James Mullaney in a saloon in Pearl street in November, 1873, the jury found the prisoner guilty of manslaughter in the fourth degree. Sentenced to eighteen months, with hard labor.

THE MULLANEY SHOOTING CASE.

A case presenting some features of unusual, not to say extraordinary interest, was tried yesterday in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, Judge Barrett on the bench. John Sullivan and James Mullaney were members of the same target company. On the evening of November 22, 1873, the company held a meeting in the liquor saloon of Thomas McMahon, No. 358 Pearl street. The party was having a pleasantly social time in drinking, talking and singing. Suddenly the report of a pistol was heard, the shot taking effect in the foot of Mullaney. At the time Sullivan and Mullaney were sitting opposite one another. The two had always been friends. Mullaney seemed to take it as a joke and, lifting his other foot, asked Sullivan to try it again. It was explained as an accidental shot, the pistol having exploded in the coat pocket of Sullivan. No serious result was anticipated at the time. The ball was found embedded in the bone of the instep. It was extracted, but day by day the patient grew worse. Finally, on the 24th of December following, after a consultation at Bellevue Hospital, it was decided to amputate the foot. The patient having been put under the influence of ether, this was done, and the patient died from the effects. The primary cause of death was shock produced by amputation. Sullivan at once surrendered himself, and the case was laid before the Grand Jury, who found an indictment against him for manslaughter in the first degree. The case came to trial yesterday in this court, Assistant District Attorney Lyon conducting the prosecution and Mr. William F. Kintzing defending the prisoner.

The first witness called was Mr. McMahon, who testified that on the night of the 22d of November, 1873, a target company held a meeting at his place, and among those present were the prisoner and the deceased. Drinks had been served to the party, and they were whiling away the time between singing and talking. Suddenly he heard the report of a pistol, and upon going to the group and inquiring if any one was hit, deceased said, "I am," at the same time showing his right foot, with a piece of the shoe shot away; deceased and the accused were sitting directly opposite each other, and about two feet apart; looking at the prisoner, after the shot was fired, the deceased held up the other foot and said, "Try it again;" he then walked up to the bar and called for more drink, which witness refused to give: there was no dispute between the parties; the prisoner remarked that the shooting was accidental, and he saw the deceased to a drug store; the ball took effect in the foot of the deceased; witness did not see any pistol; the parties were in the habit of bandying wit with each other; the two men were great friends, just like brothers.

On cross-examination by Mr. Kintzing, the witness said both men were "pretty full;" they were always together, and what one had the other was welcome to.

The medical testimony was next given, showing the cause of death, as stated above after which John Mullaney, brother of the deceased man, gave his testimony. He testified that the prisoner remarked to the deceased, "I'll bet you $2 that I can make you walk lame;" deceased retorted something, when the prisoner further said, "You — —, I'll shoot you!" deceased rejoined, "Blaze away, then," and the shot was fired; after the firing the prisoner remarked, "If you tell me to blaze away, I'll blaze away!" and stood up; twice before the prisoner tried to beat deceased, and once kicked him in the eye; he also made the remark that he liked every person in the room except deceased and witness; witness had never had any trouble with him; the prisoner had his hands in his pockets at the time of the shooting, and fired through his pocket.

John Haggerty was present at the time of the occurrence; the deceased was singing a song; the prisoner moved his chair over toward him, and said, "If you don't shut up I'll make you walk lame;" deceased said "Blaze away," whereupon he was shot.

To Counsel—I heard no angry words; knew both men; when it got late the singing became objectionable to Sullivan; the prisoner did not call deceased any improper names.

Several other witnesses testified to the same effect, substantially.

SULLIVAN'S STATEMENT.

The accused was then placed on the stand. He said he worked in the Fulton fish market; on the night of the occurrence he was in the saloon with the deceased; Mullaney was singing, and he told him to stop; he did not, and witness started toward him, when his coat caught on a chair, and a pistol which he had in his pocket was discharged; deceased said he was shot in the foot, and put his hand around the neck of the witness, who carried him over to a drug store, and told him he did it; he went to Texas after, but learning there was an indictment against him he returned to New York and surrendered himself to the District Attorney.

The above concluded the testimony, after which counsel summed up. The Court then charged the jury, who retired for deliberation. They were absent nearly an hour, when they brought in a verdict of guilty of manslaughter in the fourth degree, with a strong recommendation to mercy. Mr. Kintzing made a strong appeal for the prisoner. Judge Barrett sentenced Sullivan to eighteen months' hard labor in the State Prison.

LIABILITY OF BANK STOCKHOLDERS.

In the United States District Court yesterday the case of Albon P. Man, receiver of the Eighth National Bank in this city, vs. Leander S. Risley, came on for trial. On the 13th of December, 1871, the bank failed, when the Comptroller of the Currency appointed Mr. Man as receiver of the bank. The assets of the bank were insufficient to pay its debts, and to secure the payment of these debts it was necessary to make several stockholders of the bank personally liable. Defendant held ten shares of the bank stock at the par value of $100 each share. The Comptroller assessed him at $54 on each of these ten shares. He refused to pay this assessment. The defence set up the following reasons for not paying the assessment:—That the assessment was made without any notice of the same having been given to the defendant; that the receiver of the bank was appointed without the bank having been called upon to show cause why he should not be appointed, and that all of the Comptroller's acts were without jurisdiction in the premises. Judge Blatchford overruled these points, and directed the jury to find a verdict for the plaintiff, and they found accordingly a verdict for $568 35, being the amount of the assessment and interest on the same. Exceptions were taken to the Judge's rulings, and the case will go to the Supreme Court of the United States.

In the case of the same plaintiff, as receiver, &c., vs. John Purke, the latter held fifty shares of stock in the same bank. The suit involved the same questions as in the preceding trial, and by consent of the parties a verdict was taken in favor of the plaintiff for $2,802 37, amount of assessment and interest.

In the case of Man vs. Thomas McClelland the same question was also involved. The defendant owned 140 shares of bank stock. By consent a verdict was taken for the plaintiff for $7,851 90, including assessment and interest.

ALLEGED SMUGGLING OF GLOVES.

Yesterday, in the United States District Court, the case of the United States vs. three trunks, containing gloves, worth about $4,000, was called on for trial. These goods are claimed by Sampson Lewey, who, it is alleged, smuggled them into this city. The action has been brought by the government to confiscate the goods on the ground that they have been smuggled, as stated. Counsel for the claimant made a motion to postpone the trial till next term on the ground of the illness of the claimant and the absence of material witnesses, without whose attendance he would not be ready to go to trial. Counsel for government opposed the motion and insisted that the trial must go on. All the government witnesses were in court, and if the case were now adjourned till next term he might not then be able to proceed. Perhaps he might not be able to find all the witnesses. His impression was that the statement as to the claimant's illness was a mere excuse put forward for the purpose of delay. Counsel for the claimant repudiated an intention of this kind, and handed to the Court a certificate from Dr. Langman, which stated that the claimant was too sick to attend in court. Judge Blatchford observed that it was the easiest thing in the world to obtain a medical certificate. He would prefer to see the physician in court and have him examined as a witness on the stand. Dr. Langman then came to the stand, and deposed that the claimant was too ill to go out of his house, and that he would not be well enough to leave it before the expiration of two or three weeks. It is understood that the case will be tried to day, as a commission has been issued to take the testimony of the claimant. The claimant proposes to set up as one of his defences that he did not intend to defraud the government, and that the goods cannot be condemned unless it is shown, under section 10 of the act of June 22, 1874, that such intention existed in the mind of the claimant.

SUITS AGAINST THE CITY.

John B. Wood brought suit some time ago against the city for $1,333 33, rent of No. 619 Sixth avenue, for May and June, 1871, the same being occupied as an armory. The defence was that the Board of Supervisors had no authority to rent the premises. A demurrer was made to this answer, and there was a lengthy argument on the same yesterday before Judge Van Brunt, holding Supreme Court, Special Term. The demurrer was based on the ground that the Board of Supervisors, under the act of 1862, had no authority to hire premises for use as an armory in the absence of a demand by the Colonel of the regiment; that while the act of 1863 left it discretionary with the Board of Supervisors to hire such premises, the act of 1871 made it incumbent on the city to pay rent in all cases where premises were actually used as an armory. Judge Van Brunt took the papers, reserving his decision.

In August, 1868, Raphael Lewenthal kept a store in the basement of No. 489 Eighth avenue. Through some imperfection in the sewer the place was overflowed, and he claimed that his goods were damaged to the amount of $2,032 25. He brought suit against the city for this sum, and the case came to trial before Judge Van Vorst, holding Supreme Court Circuit, Part 3. The result of the trial, which terminated yesterday, was a verdict for $1,295 for the plaintiff.

BUSINESS IN THE OTHER COURTS.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

The York Street Flax Spinning Company of Belfast.

Before Judge Blatchford.

The case of the United States vs. The York Street Flax Spinning Company, of Belfast, Ireland, as represented through its New York agency, was called up yesterday in the United States District Court, before Judge Blatchford. The particulars of this suit, so far as they have been developed in Court, have already appeared in the HERALD. The action is brought to recover between $70,000 and $80,000 for alleged undervaluation in the importation of linen goods. Mr. William M. Evarts, counsel for the defendant, made a motion to put the case off for the term, for the purpose of sending a commission to Belfast to take testimony there before the American Vice Consul of certain witnesses whose evidence is deemed of importance to the defence. Counsel for the government opposed the motion, claiming that the question of undervaluation could be determined by the testimony already available in the case. Judge Blatchford granted the motion and the case was ordered to be set down for trial in the ensuing February term.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT—PART 2.

A Long Litigation—Interesting Insurance Suit.

Before Judge Brady.

After the close of the war of the rebellion General Este and Colonel Brink, who, during the progress of the little unpleasantness had been engaged on General Kilpatrick's staff, settled down to peaceful pursuits in Lexington, N. C. They formed a partnership and opened a country store. Through an agent they effected on their stock an insurance for $15,000, this amount being divided among four companies in this city, including the Niagara Fire Insurance Company. Sure enough they were the victims of the fire fiend. A special agent who examined into the case offered on the part of the four insurance companies, they being embraced in a single policy, $6,000 and the insured to retain possession of the remnant of damaged stock or $10,000 and the insurance companies to take the goods. These offers were refused and thereupon a second agent appeared on the scene and he reported in favor of paying nothing. A suit was accordingly commenced against the Niagara Company as a test case. This suit has been pending in the courts for several years. A referee had it under investigation for four years, when a motion was made to take it out of the hands of the referee. This motion was overruled, an appeal was taken and it went to the General Term. Finally it has reached a trial, which began yesterday in this Court. It will probably occupy two or three days.

Important Injunction Decision.

Before Judge Lawrence.

On the application made by Devlin & Co., clothiers, corner Broadway and Warren and Broadway and Grand streets, to restrain J. S. Devlin, doing business corner of Broadway and Twelfth street, from trading under the firm name of Devlin & Co., a decision was rendered yesterday. Judge Lawrence holds that while he cannot restrain a man from using his own name it is clear in the present case that the party complained of has been guilty of a misdemeanor in using the words "& Co.," he having no partner. This he considers an attempt to mislead the public and trade on the name and reputation of Devlin & Co. He therefore enjoins him from using those words in any way in his business, pendent lite.

Feeling injured in his reputation Wilson sued King for $5,000 damages for alleged malicious arrest and prosecution. MARINE COURT—PART 1.

Lyceum Theatre Cases.

Before Judge Spaulding.

In the case of Henry Dalton, an actor, who played in "Nôtre Dame" at the Lyceum Theatre when it first opened in August, 1873, against George Hoffman, Thomas Thacher, O'Curtis Hoffman and William L. Mansell, who were alleged to be the proprietors of such theatre, which was brought to recover about $700 for arrears of salary and which was tried in March, 1874, before Judge Spaulding and a jury and resulted in the plaintiff's case being dismissed on the ground that a former recovery by the plaintiff in the Second District Court of one week's salary was a bar, a motion has been since made by counsel for Mr. Dalton for a new trial on a case and exceptions, and a few days ago Judge Spaulding rendered a decision setting aside the nonsuit and granting Mr. Dalton a new trial. The defendants have taken an appeal from Judge Spaulding's decision.

MARINE COURT—PART 2.

Suit Against an Insurance Company for Alleged Services.

Before Judge McAdam.

Josiah Rich vs. The United States Life Insurance Company.—The plaintiff in this case was formerly a member of the Board of Trustees of the corporation defendants, holding the office for about three years, and at present holding a policy of insurance in it. He was some time ago elected out of office, but still claims to have a deep interest in the welfare of the company. The corporation had from its formation as its principal agent one J. B. Gates. The contract had with this party was considered a very onerous and expensive one, and the corporation ardently desired its cancellation, and after weighing all the consequences it summarily discharged Gates. The latter threatened legal warfare to the bitter end unless the corporation paid him over $100,000, which he claimed as compensation for the loss of his commissions. The plaintiff in this action, a personal friend of Gates, undertook to negotiate a settlement of the difficulty. This he eventually succeeded in doing, the company paying Gates $50,000, and the latter compensating Rich, the present plaintiff, by paying him $1,250 for his services as mediator and agent in the matter. Rich now claims that he also acted as the agent of the defendants; that his agency was accepted by them, and that they are indebted to him in the sum of $1,000, which the action is brought to recover. The defendants deny that he acted as their agent, and that, in fact, the only recognition they extended to him in the matter was when, as special agent for Gates, he brought them a written agreement from Gates that he would accept $50,000 as a relinquishment of all claim upon them on his contract, they, by the tenor of the same agreement, cancelling all claims they had against him, and which, had the case gone into the courts, they would have offset against his claim. The only witness in support of the present claim was the plaintiff himself, while the President and several officers of the company positively swore that there was no understanding, expressed or implied, that they accepted the services of the plaintiff in the negotiation as an agent; but, on the contrary, that he was recognized by them as the friend of Gates and inimical to them. Judge McAdam, in giving the case to the jury, explained very clearly the law relating to the employment of agents, and the circumstances under which an agent could act for both parties in a litigation. It must be shown that both parties accepted the agency before an agent can recover from both. It was for the jury to say whether the plaintiff, as agent in this case, could serve two masters with that fidelity which the law exacts.

After a somewhat protracted deliberation the jury found for the corporation defendants.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Keepers of an Alleged Improper House on Trial.

Before Judge Sutherland.

Yesterday Charles and Mary Fisher were placed on trial upon an indictment charging them with "compelling a woman to be defiled." The prosecuting witness, Anna Haintze, was examined at length, but as she spoke the Swiss dialect it was almost impossible for two interpreters to elicit a clear statement of the alleged offence. It appeared, however, that the defendants kept an improper house in Twenty-fourth street, and that the witness and her sister were hired to do housework, but while there were threatened with violence unless they yielded to the solicitations of men. Mr. Howe, who defended the prisoners, interposed a number of objections to the questions put by Assistant District Attorney Nolan.

The case will be resumed this morning.

The Election Murder—Rumored Indictment of Coroner Croker and Others.

The Grand Jury brought a large number of indictments into court in the afternoon. It was rumored that among them was an indictment against Coroner Croker, for the killing of James McKenna on election day, and also indictments against other parties for felonious assault and battery, growing out of the same transaction. It is probable that bench warrants were issued yesterday or will be to-day for the arrest of the persons implicated in the homicide.

Libel on a Policeman.

Daniel Norton, alias Edward L. Martin, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with libelling Officer Quigley, of the Eighth precinct. It seems that Norton charged the policeman with stealing certain jewelry from Tice's store, in Brooklyn, and that he was also implicated in the theft of a diamond cross from a store in Hudson street. It was stated that the complainant desired leniency to be shown the accused. His Honor sentenced Norton to the City Prison for five days.

Larcenies and Burglaries.

Thomas Murphy pleaded guilty to burglary in the third degree, the allegation being that on the 5th of November he broke into the cigar store of David Billon, No. 101½ Division street, and stole a box of cigars. The prisoner was sentenced to the State Prison for two years and six months.

Peter Martin, who was charged with burglariously entering the clothing store of Louis Buckman, No. 71 Columbia street, on the 28th of October, pleaded guilty to an attempt at burglary in the third degree. The sentence imposed was eighteen months in the State Prison.

Thomas Kerrigan, indicted for stealing a silver watch worth $26, on the 2d of November, from John Maurice, pleaded guilty to an attempt at petit larceny from the person. He was remanded for sentence.

George Ray, who, on the 28th of October, stole $24 in money belonging to E. B. Singleton, pleaded guilty to petit larceny.

Conrad Klein pleaded guilty to a similar charge, the indictment charging that on the 2d inst. he stole a pocketbook from Ernst Bodenwaber containing $20.

These prisoners were each sent to the Penitentiary for six months.

TOMBS POLICE COURT.

Didn't Know Where He Was.

Before Judge Kasmire.

Sunday night Enoch Monteil found himself standing on a corner, what corner he does not exactly know. He also found a man named Peter Paterson standing near him. Later he found Peter's hand in his vest pocket, and subsequently, when looking, failed to find $95, which he had before he found himself standing on the corner. Then he could not find Paterson, but Officer Gilligan assisted him, and was successful. Monteil can be found in the House of Detention and Paterson in the Tombs.

Disorderly Houses.

William Synder, of No. 456 Pearl street; John Curtis, of No. 53 Chatham street; Edward Byrnes, of No. 238 William street; Henry Scharico, of No. 97 Chatham street, and August Blacht, of No. 81 Chatham street, were all arrested by Captain Williams, on Sunday night, for keeping disorderly houses. Yesterday, when brought to the Tombs, Judge Kasmire ordered them each to find $1,000 good real estate security. Snyder was the only man who could find a bondsman, and consequently the only one at large now. All elected to be tried by a jury at the Court of General Sessions.

JEFFERSON MARKET POLICE COURT.

Billiard Ball Burglars.

Before Judge Flammer.

On Wednesday last Mr. Raymond A. Higham's billiard saloon, No. 699 Sixth avenue, was broken into and billiard balls and other property, valued at about $100, was carried away. Since that time the officers of the Twenty-ninth precinct have been on the lookout for the burglars. Officer Rogers on Sunday last arrested two young men named Daniel Bagley and Francis Keegan on suspicion. In possession of Bagley was found a pocketbook which was identified by Mr. Higham as portion of the property stolen from his place. Keegan was in company with Bagley at the time of the arrest. He is supposed to be connected with a burglary committed on the premises No. 117 Chambers street about three weeks since, when some $1,000 worth of cutlery was carried off. Judge Flammer remanded both prisoners to allow the officer time to work up the case.

Highway Robbery.

About twelve o'clock Sunday night, when Mrs. Cornelia Masterly, who had been visiting about a block or two from her home, No. 396 Seventh avenue, was proceeding thither she was met in the street by a man who pretended to be drunk and staggered up against her. Mrs. Masterly tried to get out of his way, but the man whom she supposed to be drunk suddenly snatched her watch and chain and ran away. Mrs. Masterly's cries for help attracted the attention of Officer Connell, of the Twentieth precinct, who arrested the thief. The prisoner was arraigned before Judge Flammer yesterday, where he gave his name as John Flanigan. He was committed in $2,000 bail to answer.

Robbed on Shipboard.

John McGuire, sailor on board the steamship Italy, was arraigned, charged with robbing Peter Tudell, of No. 429 Washington street, of $6 85. Tudell alleged that he was enticed on board the steamer Saturday night last, and that McGuire and several of his companions knocked him down and robbed him. McGuire was committed in $1,000 bail to answer.

FIFTY-SEVENTH STREET POLICE COURT.

Pocket Picking.

Before Judge Murray.

Margaret Stampa, of No. 26½ Hamilton street, made a charge of pocket picking against a young man named Joseph Irving. On Sunday, while riding on a Third avenue car, the accused, it was alleged, made an attempt to rob her of her pocketbook, containing $6, and was caught in the act. He was held for trial.

Cut With a Cleaver.

Robert Bailey and John Green, of Fiftieth street and Broadway, fought about money on Sunday, and Bailey struck Green on the head with a cleaver and broke a navy pistol over the same part. Bailey was arrested and on Green's complaint was held for trial.

Station House Lodgers.

Another batch of station house lodgers, numbering thirty-four, was brought from the Twenty-second precinct station house. Some of them were discharged and the remainder were sent to the Workhouse for the winter.

Stole a Watch from His Father.

On the 12th of June last Edward McGlennan, of No. 269 avenue C, was robbed of a gold watch valued at $30 by his son Michael, who pawned it and returned the ticket to his father in an envelope. Judge Sherwood, at this Court, issued a warrant at the time for his arrest, but it was not till yesterday that he returned to this city and was arrested. Judge Murray committed him for trial in default of $1,000 bail.

Alleged Indecent Assault.

Frances Schmidt preferred a charge of indecent assault against her employer, Herman Kirchberger, of No. 313 East Forty-second street. He denied the truth of the charge, but appearances were against him and he was held for trial in $500 bail.

BROOKLYN COURTS.

Suit Against a Life Insurance Company.

Before Judge Barnard.

Yesterday suit was instituted in the Supreme Court before Judge Barnard by Mrs. Franziska Steiners, a German lady, who held an endowment policy in the Knickerbocker Life Insurance Company of New York. She alleges that through her husband she purchased the policy, with the understanding that in consideration of certain payments she was to receive the sum of $1,000 at the end of five years after purchase. At the expiration of five years she claimed the money, but the company declined to pay, and hence the suit. The case is not concluded.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Motion to Admit Mrs. Merrigan, the Alleged Murderess of Maggie Hammill, to Bail—Is She Sane or Insane?

Before Judge Tappen.

Shortly after the opening of the Court yesterday, General Tracy and Patrick Keady, counsel for Mrs. Merrigan, appeared before Judge Tappen for the purpose of making a motion to have the prisoner admitted to bail. General Tracy made the motion and said that, from all counsel could learn, the jury before whom Mrs. Merrigan was tried a few weeks ago stood six for acquittal and six for murder in the second degree when they first went out; that two of them afterwards changed to murder in the second degree, but at no time did they think of murder in the first degree, the offence charged in the indictment. He felt sure that the prisoner could never be convicted, and as she has been in jail over a year already he asked that the bail be fixed at a reasonable amount. Her friends are poor, he said, and if high bail were demanded she could not get it. He cited the case of Fanny Hyde, who was charged with the shooting of her alleged seducer, George W. Watson. In this case the jury disagreed also; but the defendant was admitted to bail in the sum of $2,500.

District Attorney Winslow replied in opposition to the motion, and said that he did not think this was a proper case for bail at all. He claimed that the prisoner was an epileptic, and, therefore, unsafe to be at large. He suggested that a commission be appointed to ascertain whether she is sane or not.

General Tracy said that when the proper time came he would answer that question. If the District Attorney resolves to put the prisoner on trial at the next term of the Court he conceded the bail would be higher, but inasmuch as the District Attorney would not say that he would try her again the bail ought to be put at a low figure. Mr. Keady handed up a brief. The District Attorney had none. Judge Tappen said he would look at the papers and decide the question at an early day. Mrs. Merrigan is in poor health, having been in jail fifteen months already. She was not in court yesterday.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16, 1874.

The Supreme Court to-day rendered the following decisions:—

No. 401. Woodson et al. vs. Murdock et al.—Appeal from the Circuit Court for the District of Missouri.—This was a proceeding on the part of the proper officers of the State to enforce an alleged lien on the property of the Pacific Railroad Company, arising from certain advances made by the State to aid in the completion of the road. The company contested the right of the State to do this, alleging that the lien had been discharged by a compliance with an act of the State Legislature, and adopted in 1868, which had effected a settlement of all accounts between the State and the corporation, the latter having paid into the State Treasury an amount required by the act to be received in full discharge of all indebtedness. The State objected that the new constitution prohibited the Legislature from discharging any lien against any railroad company indebted to the State. The decree before was in favor of the company, awarding an injunction to restrain further proceedings, and, it is here affirmed, the Court holding that the constitutional provision was intended to prohibit the discharge of any lien held by the State to secure an existing debt, and that it was no obstacle in the way of a compromise, or commutation of a debt by the State, which was what had been effected by the legislation. In this instance there was no longer any indebtedness. Mr. Justice Strong delivered the opinion of the Court. Mr. Justice Miller read a dissenting opinion, in which Mr. Justice Davis concurred, holding that the thing prohibited by the constitution was the discharge or remission in any shape of the specific lien which the State had on the railroads for the repayment of the State bonds which had been advanced to the companies.

No. 8. Perris et al. vs. Higley et al.—Error to the Supreme Court of Utah.—In this case action was brought in the Probate Court of the Territory on a promissory note and judgment was recovered. The Supreme Court of the Territory reversed the judgment, holding that the Probate Court had no jurisdiction of such a suit. That judgment is here affirmed, this Court holding that the act of the Territorial Legislature conferring on the Probate Court jurisdiction in civil and criminal cases, both in chancery and at common law, is inconsistent with the organic act, which limited and defined the powers of such courts, and therefore void. Mr. Justice Miller delivered the opinion.

No. 14. Hardy et al. vs. Harbin et al.—Appeal from the Circuit Court for California.—This was a contest for a title to certain lands under a Mexican grant, the complainants claiming to be children of one Hardy, who died under an assumed name some years ago in California, the owner of the tract. The case went against them below on the ground that the defendants were innocent bona fide purchasers for value without notice. This Court affirms that decree, but without considering the point on which the case turned below, having first determined that the appellants are not the children of the party who died seized of the land. Mr. Justice Hunt delivered the opinion.

No. 50. State of Maryland vs. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company—Error to the Court of Appeals of Maryland.—The points in this case have been several times stated. The State claimed a balance of interest to be due from the company equal to the difference between gold and legal tenders at the dates on which certain payments were made. The company asserted that there was no contract for the payment in gold, and it was so decided below. This view is affirmed here, the Court saying that there is no just ground for the implication that the company assumed to pay its dues to the State in gold or in any other money than in money generally, and the fact that the company did pay the State interest in sterling funds in London down to 1865 cannot change the construction of the contract. Mr. Justice Strong delivered the opinion.

No. 42. The United States vs. Boeckler—Error to the Circuit Court for Maryland.—This was a suit upon a distiller's bond, which fixed the distillery of the principal on the corner of Hudson street and East avenue, in the town of Canton, Baltimore county. It was proved on the trial that the taxes were due on a distillery located on the corner of Hudson and Third streets in the same town and county. The Court instructed the jury that if the principal carried on no business as a distiller at the corner of Hudson street and East avenue they would find for the defendant and his sureties, and the result was a verdict for the defendants. The judgment entered on that verdict is here affirmed, the Court holding that in such a case it is not sufficient that the surety may sustain no injury by a change in the contract; he has a right to stand upon its very terms, and if he does not assent to any variation of it, and a variation is made, it is fatal. Mr. Justice Swayne delivered the opinion of the Court. Mr. Justice Bradley dissented, thinking the decision had a tendency to cast every burden upon the government and to unduly relieve the sureties.

No. 29. Avery vs. Hackley et al.—Error to the Circuit Court for Michigan.—This was an action to recover the value of a large quantity of sawlogs alleged to have been fraudulently sold by a bankrupt. The judgment below set aside the bill of sale, but sustained a contract in pursuance of which the defendants were protected in their claim. This Court affirmed the judgment, remarking that the assignee fails to show by sufficient proof that the defendants intended to abandon this contract and rely wholly on the bill of sale, which was set aside. Mr. Justice Davis delivered the opinion.

No. 399. Smythe (Collector) vs. Fish & Co.—Error to the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York.—This was an action to recover certain duties on an importation of silk neckties by the defendants in error exacted by the Collector. The decision is that such articles are subject to a duty of fifty per cent ad valorem, and reverses the judgment below, which was for the importers, on the ground that silk neckties were within the acts of 1861 and 1862, and were excluded by the act of 1864. Mr. Justice Swayne delivered the opinion.

No. 38. Leonard and Kip vs. Ship Teutonia—Appeal from the Circuit Court for the District of Louisiana.—This was a case of collision on the Mississippi, between the steamer Brown and the ship Teutonia, the latter at the time seeking an anchorage in a dense fog. The decision below was in favor of the libellants, charging the Teutonia with negligence causing the accident. The decision here reverses the decree, with costs here, and divides the costs and damages below. Mr. Justice Clifford delivered the opinion.

No. 49. Gillette vs. Ballard—Error to the Circuit Court for Montana.—This was an affirmance of a judgment involving questions of practice in the Territory. The Chief Justice delivered the opinion.

No. 53. Rogers et al. vs. schooner S. B. Wheeler—Error to Circuit Court for Massachusetts.—This was a case of collision involving only questions of fact. Affirmed. The Chief Justice delivered the opinion.

NEW INFLUENCES AT WORK.

WALL STREET, MONDAY, Nov. 16—6 P. M.

The stock market to-day was strong, the advance ranging from ⅛ to 2½ per cent. The movement was not unattended with surprise, because it was chiefly identified with the cheaper securities to which little or no attention has recently been paid. The improvement and the purposes that are behind it warrant the suspicion of further changes in the near future, and possibly a market even more surprising than that which with such strange suddenness has been developed to-day. In analyzing prices it will be observed that attention has been diverted from the higher priced shares like Lake Shore and Western Union, which seem to have been adopted as leaders. Yet the fact was in accord with the suggestions in this column yesterday, that among the early possibilities was the transfer of speculative interest to the lower-priced line of stocks and the making of the latter the salient points of the financial situation. The event came, perhaps, sooner than we expected, but the result is written in the following figures:—

GAINS AND LOSSES.

Compared with closing prices of Saturday those of this afternoon show the following changes:—

GAINS—Atlantic and Pacific preferred, ⅛ per cent; New York Central and Hudson, ¼; C., C. and I. C., ⅜; Erie, ⅜; Hannibal and St. Joseph, ⅛; Lake Shore, ⅛; Northwest common, 1⅜; Ohio and Mississippi, ⅛; Pacific Mail, ⅜; Panama, ⅝; Quicksilver, ⅜; Rock Island, 1⅛; St. Paul, 1⅛; Wabash, ⅜; Union Pacific, ⅝; Western Union, ⅛.

LOSSES—Harlem, ⅛.

Canton, Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph and Delaware and Lackawanna were steady.

THE SALES

The principal speculation of the day was in Western Union, St. Paul, Northwestern common, Lake Shore, Rock Island, Ohio and Mississippi, Union Pacific, Wabash and Pacific Mail. The transactions amounted to 250,000 shares, which were divided as follows;—New York Central and Hudson, 9,800; Erie, 7,400; Lake Shore, 30,600; Northwestern, 44,600; Northwestern preferred, 3,400; Rock Island, 14,700; Pacific Mail, 18,900; St. Paul, 20,100; St. Paul preferred, 3,600; Ohios, 15,800; Western Union, 35,900; Wabash, 17,400; Union Pacific, 15,400; C., C. and I. C., 200.

OPENING, HIGHEST AND LOWEST PRICES.

The following table shows the opening, highest and lowest prices of the day:—

	Opening.	Highest.	Lowest.

Rock Island	100⅛	101⅛	100⅛

Western Union	80⅜	81	80⅛
Pacific Mail	45⅜	45⅞	45⅜
Panama	115	115	114⅝

It will be seen that Northwestern common rose from 40⅞ to 42⅜, preferred from 58⅛ to 61, St. Paul common from 35⅜ to 37⅜, preferred from 55⅜ to 57⅜, and Rock Island from 100⅛ to 101⅛. The improvement in the remainder of the list was less important, having been only from ⅛ to ⅜ per cent. At the close prices reacted ⅛ to ⅜ per cent from the highest point.

MONEY.

The money market shows no material change, the rates on call loans still being 3 a 4 per cent, with the ruling figures at 3 a 3½. Prime mercantile paper sold at 5 a 6 per cent, and single names between 7 and 12 per cent. Foreign exchange closed firm at 4 86 a 4 86½ for bankers' sixty days sterling, and 4 90 a 4 90½ for demand.

THE FOREIGN MARKET.

Late London advices report the withdrawal from the Bank of England to-day of £89,000; also that the governors of the institution at a special meeting advanced the bank rate to 5 per cent, an increase of 1 per cent since Saturday. This course was not unexpected by well informed bankers, and it is therefore not strange that both gold and exchange should have followed the advance. The former may now be shipped, and there is probability of a considerable drain. If it should take place it will not only enhance the price of gold, but of money. Consols for money, 93¼ a 93⅜; for the account, 93¼ a 93⅜. Erie Railroad, 26⅜. Paris rentes at 61f. 50c.

GOLD

opened at 110⅞ and advanced to and closed at 111⅛. The advance in the English bank rate and sterling, together with a shipment engaged for to-morrow, combined to give a strong tone to the price. The rates paid for carrying were 1, 1½ and 2 per cent, and for borrowing flat.

COMMERCIAL REPORT.

Cotton on the Spot 1-8c. Higher—Futures Closed at Saturday's Figures—Flour Steadier—Wheat Firm—Corn Dull—Oats Firmer—Pork More Active in a Jobbing Way—Bacon Firm—Cut Meats Quiet—Beef Quiet—Beef Hams Neglected—Lard for Future Delivery Firmer—Dressed Hogs Fairly Active—Coffee More Active—Other Groceries Quiet—Naval Stores and Petroleum Dull—Freights Quiet.

MONDAY, Nov. 16—6 P. M.

The mercantile markets were generally more animated and firmer. One or two small failures were reported, but they exerted no influence on the markets. On 'Change flour was steadier, with a better inquiry. Wheat was fairly active and strong, some of the largest dealers holding for a further advance and refusing to sell at current prices. A fair export demand prevailed, though it was checked by the extreme prices demanded. Corn was dull and heavy. Oats were firmer for all kinds. Barley was stronger. Whiskey was unchanged. Pork and bacon were stronger. Lard was also in request and firmer, both on the spot and for future contracts. Cotton on the spot advanced ⅛c. per lb., with a good demand, which resulted in limited transactions, however, to the higher pretensions of holders. "Futures" sold at an advance of 1-16c. a ⅛c. This was subsequently lost and the market closed feeble at Saturday's prices. No transactions of considerable magnitude were made in either naval stores or petroleum, which were to a great extent nominal. Aside from a better feeling in coffee there was no noticeable change in the grocery market.

COFFEE.—With an increased business the market wears an improved tone, and holders generally are firm in their views. The dealings reported since our last include 5,800 bags, per the Alice, at 17⅜c.; 7,000 do. by the John Sargent at 17⅝c., both gold, and 5,000 bags by the J. D. Tupper on terms not made public. In mild goods we note sales of 1,200 bags Moca on private terms. This exhausts the stock in first hands. We quote:—Rio, ordinary cargoes, 15⅜c. a 16c.; fair do., 17½c. a 18c.; good do., 18⅜c. a 18⅝c.; prime do., 19⅜c. a 20c.; extreme range for lots, 15⅜c. a 20½c.; Java, government bags, 24c. a 26c.; do. grass mats, 25c. a 28c.; Ceylon, 17c. a 19⅜c.; Maracaibo, 16⅜c. a 19⅜c.; Laguayra, 18c. a 19⅜c.; Jamaica, 17c. a 19c.; St. Domingo, 16⅜c. a 17c.; Porto Rico, 17⅜c. a 19⅜c.; Costa Rica, 17⅜c. a 19⅜c.; Mexican, 18c. a 19c.; Angostura, 17c. a 19c.; Savanilla, 15⅜c. a 19⅜c.; Curacoa, 16c. a 18c., gold, 60 and 90 days.

COTTON.—The market for spot cotton was firmer and prices ruled ⅛c. per lb. higher, with holders generally asking a still further advance, which checked business. Future deliveries, after selling at an advance of 1-16c. a ⅛c. per lb., closed with a declining tendency at Saturday's prices. We quote (quotations based on American standard of classification) —

CORONERS' CASES.

James O'Laughlin, nineteen years of age, died at the Newsboys' Home, No. 53 Warren street, from hemorrhage of the lungs. He had been under treatment at Bellevue Hospital and was discharged on Saturday. Coroner Woltman was notified.

Soon after seven o'clock yesterday morning the Twenty-eighth precinct police found lying in the area of premises No. 111 King street the dead body of Fanny Rothwall, a woman fifty years of age. It was sent to the Morgue.

Coroner Woltman yesterday held an inquest in the case of Robert Thompson, two years old, whose parents live at No. 335 East Thirteenth street. It was supposed that the child had been run over on the 24th ult. by an ice cart, but the testimony failed to show that the vehicle passed over the child. It is supposed that the fatal injuries were inflicted by being knocked down. The jury rendered a verdict of accidental death.

Coroner Woltman was yesterday called to the Morgue, to hold an inquest on the body of Ellen Snurlilco, an English woman, thirty-five years of age, who died from fracture of the base of the skull, supposed to have been caused by an accidental fall. Deceased had been in Bellevue Hospital ten days.

An inquest was yesterday held by Coroner Kessler, in the case of Edward S. Pistorius, a German, fifty years of age, who was killed on the 9th inst. from injuries received by accidentally falling through the hatchway of the Lion Brewery, 109th street, where deceased was employed.

About one o'clock yesterday afternoon Emma Frocher, a child two and a half years of age, fell from a third story window of house No. 255 avenue A to the rear yard, thus fracturing her skull, death ensuing ten minutes afterward. Coroner Kessler was notified.

INCENDIARISM.

A fire, certainly of incendiary origin, was discovered at about noon yesterday in the cellar of the four story tenement house No. 1,204 Third avenue. A piece of matting was found burning fiercely on the top of a step-ladder, in close vicinity to the woodwork of the floor above. The flames were put out by the police without damage.

ALDERMEN AT LARGE.

Under the peculiar law passed by the Legislature six Aldermen at Large were elected in the city at the last election on a general ticket. The four getting the largest number of votes are elected, together with the two receiving the next highest. The following is the result of the official canvass for those offices:—

Cole	67,533	Gross	66,255
Guntzer	67,554	Vance	43,404
Lewis	68,390	Billings	42,747

The above gentlemen are thus elected. It may be of interest to give the votes of other candidates who ran as follows:—

Kuhne	42,193	Crudon	154
Forster	40,478	McMullen	91
Beekman	14,064	Keyes	86
Blumenthal	15,599	Carsey	117
Beatty	13,798	Taylor	80
Spellman	13,646	Blair	85
Gibbs	94	Young	2

MUNICIPAL NOTES.

The Board of Assistant Aldermen held a short session yesterday. The term of office of those gentlemen expires on the 1st of January next, and consequently their meetings are quite frequent of late, although they do not transact very important business when they do meet. Yesterday the time was spent in debating the question as to exemption of the American Institute from Croton water tax. Considerable oratory and parliamentary tactics were exhibited, Mr. Clancy facetiously suggesting that the matter should be laid over until the 2d of January. The proposition was finally referred to the Committee of the Whole.

The pictures in the Governor's Room have once more been levied upon by the Sheriff to satisfy a judgment against the city for $9,933 78, recovered by Coroner Eickhoff. They are advertised for sale on the 21st of the present month. The desecrating hand of the Sheriff's auctioneer will then be laid upon this gorgeous collection, unless in the meanwhile Comptroller Green steps in with his check (which is very unlikely) or the Courts grant a stay of proceedings.

The City Chamberlain makes the following report for the past week:—Balance on hand, November 7, $3,726,567 23; receipts for week, $1,390,574 24; paid, $1,521,775 41; remaining on hand, November 14, $3,595,366 36.

SHERIFF CONNER AND THE MARSHALS.

A Bitter Fight for the Patronage of the Marine Court.

There is likely to be a collision between the Sheriff, the City Marshals and some of the Judges of the Marine Court. This trouble arises out of an order recently issued by four (a majority) of the Judges of the Court, directing that all processes under their jurisdiction should be executed by the Sheriff of the city and county of New York. Hitherto the marshals have had almost entire control of this business. These gentlemen are thirty-five in number and appointed for three years by the Mayor, who of course has power of removal for cause. When Mayor Wickham comes into office a number of changes will probably be made. Some of these marshals make from $5,000 to $10,000 a year, and the position is consequently one of emolument. The Marine Court is, however, their main source of revenue, as the business of the Civil Judicial District Courts, ten in number, amounts to very little, the jurisdiction being limited. In the Marine Court an immense amount of business is transacted in the matter of executions against property, attachments, orders of arrest. Sheriff Conner claims that the patronage of his office is not at all what it ought to be, and that the great responsibilities with which he is charged in his official capacity demand an equal amount of influence and recompense. In an affidavit appended to the statement of Mr. John Kelly, and published in the HERALD some time since, in answer to Mayor Havemeyer, the Sheriff alleged that, instead of making money, he was fast losing. On the other hand, the marshals assert that Sheriff Conner's office is very lucrative—at least worth between $100,000 and $200,000 per annum—and that the gentleman ought to be satisfied with this income, without taking the bread and butter out of the mouths of officials who have scarcely anything else to depend upon.

It is understood that Sheriff Conner will appoint two additional deputies in the Marine Court should the order be maintained by the higher courts giving the patronage to his office. The marshals believe that the law is on their side. They insist that the legal profession of the city are almost unanimously in favor of them, and wish to give the process of the Court to any marshal they please, instead of having their papers pass through the routine of the Sheriff's office.

A bill was introduced into the last Legislature providing for the control of this patronage in the interest of the Sheriff, but it failed to pass. The contest as to who are properly entitled to it, whether the marshals or the Sheriff, will no doubt be definitely settled by the courts in a few days.

BOARD OF EXCISE.

The Board of Excise Commissioners met yesterday and granted twelve licenses which were applied for during last week. The Commissioners are jubilant over Captain Williams' action in arresting the unlicensed keepers of the low drinking places in the Fourth precinct. The Commissioners say that the Board will now give all cases of unlicensed liquor selling into the hands of the police, with the purpose either to force the violators of the Excise law out of their illegal traffic or to compel them to pay for licenses and comply with all the requirements of that law. The Commissioners are determined, in view of the probable severity of the coming season, to enforce their rules with strictness, as, according to a section of the Excise law, all the money they collect for licenses is distributed among the charitable institutions at the discretion of the Board of Apportionment.

TRIPLE SHEET.

New York, Tuesday, Nov. 17, 1874.

From our reports this morning the probabilities are that the weather to-day will be cloudy, with possibly rain.

WALL STREET YESTERDAY.—Several stocks showed an unexpected advance, and the general market was strong. Gold advanced to 111¼. The Bank of England advanced its rate of discount from 4 to 5 per cent. Money, 3½ a 4 per cent.

YESTERDAY we had another added to the many beautiful days of this lovely autumn for hunting and nutting and driving and shopping, and for "walking down Broadway."

CHURCH REFORM by the government has caused riots in various parts of Poland. Governments everywhere should let the Church reform itself.

GARIBALDI has been elected to the Italian Chamber of Deputies, but other republican candidates have been less successful. Saffi was defeated in three districts, and elected in Rimini.

A HEAVY EARTHQUAKE is reported in Chili. Earthquakes, tidal waves, typhoons, eclipses and falling stars have been the great events in both hemispheres for a month or two, including our October and November State elections.

THE ARGENTINE WAR.—A despatch has been received in Paris, dated Montevideo, November 11, which states that the war in the Argentine States has been ended by a compromise, one of the conditions of which is the resignation of the Presidency by Avellaneda and the speedy election of his successor. The fact that no battle has recently been fought by the opposing armies gives probability to this report.

STANLEY'S DISCOVERIES IN AFRICA.—Our special despatches from London bring important news from Mr. Stanley, dated at Zanzibar, October 19. The discoveries of our correspondent are of great value—first, geographically and commercially, as by his survey of the delta of the Rufigi River he has found two navigable channels into the interior of Africa; and second, in the interests of Christianity and civilization, as these river courses are crossed by the route of the slave trade. Mr. Stanley thinks that by stationing a steam launch, properly armed, upon the river, the slave trade could be easily and completely broken up. No more important discovery than this has been made for years, and Mr. Stanley is completing the great work for humanity to which his great predecessor Livingstone gave up his life.

The New Trouble in Arkansas—President Grant's Opportunity.

It is unfortunate for the citizens of Arkansas to have the tranquillity of their State again unsettled so soon after the bloody disturbances of last spring by a new contest between rival claimants to the Governorship. But it is an opportune occurrence for President Grant if he makes a skilful use of it, as we have little doubt he will. The peace of Arkansas will not be seriously disturbed. Smith has no militia, and is, in fact, a skulking fugitive, hiding himself from the pursuit of Governor Garland's officers. There will be no bloodshed, but an occasion is offered for such action by President Grant on Smith's application as will enable him to set himself right with the country in respect to his policy of interference with State governments. His original intermeddling in Louisiana was a great blunder, of which he himself seemed sensible when it was too late to rectify it. He was in a fair way to correct the bad impression it made when the new Louisiana broil in September, without any fault of his, recalled the mistake and obliterated the acts of atonement. His rejection of the application from Texas, and his decision in favor of Baxter last spring, in Arkansas, would have been accepted by the country as evidence of a change of policy if the unfortunate uprising against Kellogg in September had not compelled the President to make a strong seeming indorsement of his first action. The HERALD believes that he was legally and morally bound to support Kellogg in that last emergency; but his duty as an officer was in conflict with his interest as a politician. The fall elections were approaching, and the necessity of supporting Kellogg recalled the President's original blunder so vividly to the public mind that his opponents made as much political capital out of it as if it had been a fresh occurrence, whereas his satisfactory action in the similar cases of Texas and Arkansas would otherwise have shielded him. But it is fortunate for him that he is so soon furnished with a new occasion for proving his repugnance to interpose in a State government to support his own party. Governor Garland, of Arkansas, is a democrat, and by granting the application of Smith the President would put one of his own partisans in office, as he did in the case of Kellogg two years ago. But we have no doubt he will be glad of an opportunity to make a decision which will demonstrate to the country that he refuses to intermeddle in such State contests.

The present Arkansas affair presents no legal difficulties. The Legislature of the State, called together during the disturbances last spring, provided, in the regular manner, for a constitutional convention, which was accordingly assembled, and framed a new constitution, which the people of the State adopted, and an election was held under it for the choice of new State officers. This election was conducted under the authority of Governor Baxter, the State Executive, whose right to the office was sustained by the President last spring. The democratic party carried the State, electing Mr. Garland, the present Governor. When the time came for his inauguration Governor Baxter surrendered the State authority into Garland's hands by a legal and peaceful transfer, and there would have been no further trouble if the radicals of the State had not disputed the validity of the new constitution. They made Smith, the Lieutenant Governor under Baxter, their tool. If the new constitution was illegal Baxter would be entitled to hold on to his office, and in case of his resignation Smith, the Lieutenant Governor, would succeed to his place and authority. This is the part Smith is attempting to play, put up to it by the reckless radicals of Arkansas. He disputes the validity of the new constitution and of the election under it, and claims the authority which would have belonged to Governor Baxter had there been no other change than Baxter's retirement. If the new constitution is a nullity Smith's title to the Governorship is good; but as that constitution was adopted by an overwhelming majority of the people of the State there is no likelihood of Smith's recognition by the President, who ought to be glad of so solid a reason for rejecting his claim. General Grant should congratulate himself on the occurrence of this conspicuous opportunity, so soon after the elections, to prove that his Louisiana precedent does not bind him. He can thus take his first step out of the Wilderness after the late disastrous political battles.

But, unless we are misinformed, the strong willed President, who never quailed under a military reverse, has already taken a far more decided step in the political strategy which is to retrieve the horrible slaughter of the political Wilderness. If the news we have received is true it may turn out that the exultation of the democrats may prove as vain as the exultation of General Lee after the checks he gave the Union commander in the early stages of his overland march toward Richmond. It is in Grant's character to exhibit the same dogged and victorious resolution in political as in military contests. Any other general than Grant would have retreated to Washington after the appalling slaughter of the Wilderness battles. But the indomitable Grant pressed on by a skilful series of flank movements, and, in spite of some subsequent disasters, he planted his army near enough to Richmond to insure his final triumph. The character of the man has not changed, and the same pride of success, the same dogged and indomitable resolution which refused to acknowledge, as any other commander would have acknowledged, that he was beaten at the Wilderness, may perhaps bear President Grant onward after the apparently overwhelming political checks he has experienced in the recent elections. There were three or four occasions in General Grant's military career when he would have gone under if his peerless strength of character had not rescued him. The frothy exultation of the democratic party may prove as premature and short-lived as that of the Confederates after their transient successes if Grant should evince the same vigor in politics which he exhibited in war. If our information is correct he has already done so.

We learn from Washington that on Thursday last the President sent a cable despatch to Paris to Minister Washburne, requesting his immediate return to Washington. If this information is authentic—and we have no reason to doubt it—it is hardly possible to overrate its importance. The summoning of Mr. Washburne to Washington of course means a change of the Cabinet, and a change of Cabinet at this time would be conclusive proof of a political "new departure" by the President. Mr. Washburne's return to take the first place in the Cabinet is perhaps the wisest strategy which President Grant could adopt. Washburne is a politician whose record in Congress is of a character to recommend him to the country, because no member who served with him made himself so conspicuous as a strenuous advocate of economy. He has acquired a shining reputation as Minister to Paris in a trying period, and he will come back to this country uncommitted to any side in our recent domestic controversies. But he is thoroughly conversant with our domestic politics, is perfectly acquainted with the capacities, ambitions and political relations of all our leading public men, and his long personal friendship with President Grant, whom he put on the road to fortune, would make him the most valued as well as the most trusted adviser the President could have in a critical conjuncture like the present. If Mr. Washburne has been summoned home he will, of course, take the position of Secretary of State, and be the head of the new Cabinet. If the President has called him to this station he will follow his advice in selecting the other members of his new Cabinet, and although Mr. Washburne has been for several years absent from the country the President could not find a wiser or more judicious counsellor. A new Cabinet selected by President Grant, with the advantage of Mr. Washburne's advice, would be a strong one, and would, doubtless, have a great ascendancy over Congress during the coming session, when everything must be done which can be done at all to retrieve the political situation.

We have no doubt that President Grant will act wisely in this new Arkansas difficulty, and prove that he retreats from his original mistake in supporting Kellogg in Louisiana, and if our information that he has summoned Mr. Washburne from Paris to Washington is confirmed the democratic rejoicings over the recent elections may prove to be premature. Grant has his political Wilderness now as he had his military Wilderness in 1864, and his summoning of Mr. Washburne from Paris will encourage the republican party to believe that he will survive the one as triumphantly as he did the other.

The Manning-Gladstone Controversy.

Mr. Disraeli has an Oriental way of speculating upon events, and he at times permits himself to become a seer. In these moods he tells us that the world is on the eve of a great crisis. He gave us a hint of it in "Lothair" and in his address to the students in Scotland. He reminded his hearers at a London dinner that it was coming, and he defended the recent legislation on Church questions on the ground that when it did really come he wished the Church of England to be surrounded by as many bulwarks as possible. Without accepting what may be called the empirical quality in Mr. Disraeli's prophecies, it would seem that this crisis is to come as a religious controversy. Religious questions now control the politics of Europe. We have seen them in Italy, in Belgium and especially in France. Switzerland is now in the throes of a religious strife, and Germany, fresh from her prodigious encounter with France, now finds herself grappling with the mighty power of Rome.

England necessarily answers in sympathy. Mr. Gladstone's brilliant, but we fear audacious and ill-considered manifesto, makes religion, as the World aptly puts it, an important element in future political controversies. This is not unnatural from a man who began his career as a writer on Church questions. But will the liberal party follow him? The whole question of infallibility seems to us to be too purely a religious sentimental question to be in any way a danger to the State. Who is to prevent the Pope from declaring himself infallible? He has a right to so consider himself, and so may the head of any other Church. It is a sentiment after all only binding upon those who accept it. Every priest or clergyman, no matter what his faith, preaches the doctrine of infallibility when he preaches that Christ, the Lord, rules heaven and earth, and that he is Christ's minister. What is this but the dogma of infallibility? We agree with the Evening Post that we cannot see how such an assumption in any way derogates from the powers of the State or alienates a citizen from his allegiance. When Mr. Gladstone seriously claims it he conjures up an imaginary fear, and writes more like a politician anxious to appeal to the Protestant prejudices of England than as a statesman anxious to adjust harmoniously all the relations of Church and State.

The Public Libraries on Sunday.

The experiment of opening the public reading rooms and libraries on Sunday has been successful, we believe, wherever it has been fairly tried. The trouble with young men in our large cities is that they have no intellectual recreations or occupations on Sunday after the few hours they may spend in church. The library offers them the opportunity they need, and they desire it all the more because during the week many of them are deprived of it by their business engagements. The habits of reading or study formed in youth generally endure through life, and even desultory reading must tend to improve the mind and guard it from coarse fascinations. The temptations to indulge in idle amusements or injurious dissipation are almost unnumbered in a great city like New York, and must be counteracted by higher attractions. While our theologians and actors are debating the propriety of opening the theatres and opera houses on Sunday, there should be no difference of opinion about the public libraries. It is a great wrong to the young men of the city to close them on the day when they are most needed.

THE DEFEAT of Mr. Emerson for the Lord Rectorship of the University of Glasgow will not disappoint the great philosopher, as he did not seek the office, while, on the other hand, that five hundred students gave him their votes is a compliment of which any American might be proud.

The Rumored Recall of Mr. Washburne—Will Mr. Fish Be the Next Minister to France?

The report comes to us from Washington that the President has sent a cable despatch to Mr. Washburne at Paris, requesting his immediate return for the purpose of consulting with him upon the defeat of the administration and the policy which should now be adopted. The probability that this report is true is sustained by the well known fact that Mr. Washburne has always been the President's intimate friend, and, during the early portion of his administration, was his confidential adviser. When the President, dazzled with the splendor of his own popularity, thought he could control the government unaided, he did not need the personal counsel of Mr. Washburne; but now, in the hour of darkness and distress, it is natural that he should turn to his old and steadfast friend for advice. So, when the Greeks were victorious in battles before Troy they were content with the suggestions of Ajax and Agamemnon; but when Hector drove their troops before him, like an irresistible democratic majority, Nestor and Ulysses were summoned to the council of the chiefs.

We have said that Mr. Fish should resign, not because we would lose him from the Cabinet, to which his presence gives dignity, but because his resignation would compel that of the other members. They now lurk in the shadow of his example, and justify their retention of office by the specious plea that it would be presumption in them to retire before their leader. The return of Mr. Washburne would offer an opportunity of extricating the administration from its perplexities which wise statesmanship would not overlook. Mr. Fish should be appointed Minister to France by the President, and in that position his great abilities and large experience would still be of service to the country—of far more service than they can ever be again in the home administration which the country has so emphatically condemned. This step would be instantly followed by the resignations of the other members of the Cabinet, and with Mr. Washburne's help a new Cabinet would be formed in which the whole country would have confidence. This is an honorable and dignified course for the President to pursue; and even if the report of Mr. Washburne's recall should be premature it is to be earnestly hoped that it will prove to be one of those coming events which cast their shadows before.

The 'Longshoremen's Strike.

Seven thousand 'longshoremen are on strike in the city and twenty steamship companies are combined in the determination to dispense with their services rather than pay the wages they demand. It is a perilous adventure for men to leave their labor at this time of year and in a city crowded as ours is by thousands of men out of employment and with needy, perhaps even hungry, families to support. Without going into the technicalities of the case as to whether the reduction in pay which the employers of labor endeavor to enforce is an injustice to the men the impolicy of giving up at this time of year any labor that will keep the pot boiling ought to be clear to the common sense of every person concerned. It is proper, undoubtedly, for men to wish to get the best wages they can; it is the common and natural impulse of all to endeavor to hold on to what they have, and men, no doubt, will resist reduction more tenaciously than they will demand increase. But as their right to strike in support of their demands is conceded, the right of the employers to get their work done as cheaply as possible goes with it. Can the places of these men be supplied by others who can do the work as well, and who will willingly work for what these men refuse? This is the one practical point in the case, and this is the point the strikers should have considered. Can they enforce their demand? If they cannot they foolishly put in peril the comfort, the very existence, of their wives and children every hour that they hold out. Some time ago all the stokers in the London gas works struck for wages. Their occupation was somewhat like that of the 'longshoremen—a labor that a new hand of ordinary intelligence could learn to do in from two weeks to a month as well as it was done by the oldest hand. New men were employed and taught, and not a hand of the strikers was ever taken on again. That is the peril of going on strike in occupations where it is ordinary and not skilled labor that is called for. It is estimated that there are fifty thousand men out of employment in the city, and the greater part of these will be willing to work for the reduced wages that the 'longshoremen refuse. Men act without due thought in venturing at the beginning of winter a risk that may deprive them of the means of subsistence—especially married men with families. Single men may take the chances and sacrifice a good employment in disputes of the abstract rights of capital and labor; but men with wives and little ones dependent on them for bread, if they indulge in such undertakings, should be sure before they begin that the chances are not overwhelmingly against them.

THE DEFEAT OF THE CHEYENNES.—Another brilliant victory over the Cheyennes has been won in Texas, two hundred warriors having been completely routed by half the number of United States cavalry, under the command of Lieutenant Frank D. Baldwin. The rescue of two little white girls, whose father and mother the savages had massacred, is one of the most pleasing incidents of the battle. But, while we must rejoice in the splendid victories our soldiers achieve, the question of why this annual Indian war is necessary cannot be silenced. There is cruel, costly, fatal fighting every year because of an incompetent, corrupt, exploded Indian policy. The army is not permitted by the government to prevent Indian outrages, but it is always expected to punish them. General Sheridan's plan for controlling the tribes must be adopted if this disgraceful war is ever to be permanently ended.

The Heavy City Taxation.

The rate of taxation in the city of New York is steadily increasing year after year. At the present time we are paying two dollars and eighty cents on every one hundred dollars of the valuation of real and personal estate in the city for the expenses of the city government. The provisional estimate for 1875, as passed by the Board of Apportionment, will impose a tax of three per cent next year unless the appropriations for the departments are further reduced by the Board of Aldermen. The other burdens upon property besides this tax, in the shape of rates, assessments and interest, are so heavy that it is questionable whether they will not soon amount to practical confiscation. If we were living under an enterprising, progressive municipal administration; if works of public improvement—costly for the moment, but certain to be remunerative in the end—were being vigorously pushed to completion; if, in short, we were prosperous, growing, expanding and only laying out our money to get back a profitable return, the people would cheerfully carry the load heaped upon their shoulders. But when they see the city in a state of dry rot; when they find evidences of stupidity and incompetency in the management of public affairs; when the uptown improvements are stagnant, the necessary public works neglected and business prostrated, they do not feel disposed to stand patiently by while their substance is being eaten up by taxation.

The city debt at the present moment amounts very nearly to one hundred and fifty million dollars. In 1875 some eighteen or twenty millions of this debt will become payable. It is proposed to raise nearly thirty-seven million dollars by taxation for the expense of governing the city next year, and yet less than one million and a half of this enormous sum is applied to the payment of the bonds falling due. The balance is pushed forward by renewal in the shape of new bonds and added to the mountainous ball of debt rolling steadily on before us. We are in the condition of a merchant who incurs new debts every year and who pays only five cents on the dollar of his old notes as they fall due, giving new notes for the balance. Some idea of our financial management may be gathered from the report of the suits against the city pending in the Corporation Counsel's office on September 30. These suits number nearly three thousand five hundred and involve an amount of more than ten million dollars, without taking into consideration the large sum dependent upon the actions to vacate assessments. The valuation of real estate in the city was increased forty-five million dollars this year over 1873, and this in face of the fact of a decline in the market. The tax proposed for 1875 would have been $3 16 per cent on the real estate valuation of 1873. It would have been $3 40 per cent on the valuation of 1871, the year in which our present financial policy commenced.

Every property owner knows that he cannot obtain next year so much rent as he receives this year for his houses and stores. In some instances good tenants who have been for years in possession notify their landlords that they can pay only fifty per cent of their old rents. Under these circumstances it is about time that we should discontinue sentimental appeals, whenever attempts are made to reduce the city estimates, and look squarely at the condition of the city. It is notorious that half the money expended by some of the municipal departments is used for political or personal patronage and not for the interest or the business of the city. The appropriations should be cut down with a firm hand, and the heads of departments should be made to understand that they must conduct the public offices as they would conduct their private business, and not make them the vehicles of patronage to their followers and friends. We have reached a point when by departmental extravagance and incompetent financial management the real estate owners of the city are in danger of seeing their property practically confiscated, and it is about time they should take some steps for their own protection. Now, Mr. Wickham, what can you do for us? Will you use your influence to reduce the rate of taxation threatened for 1875, and help us by solid economy next year?

Mr. Simonton and the Associated Press.

We receive an occasional letter from Mr. J. W. Simonton, the able agent of the Associated Press, exposing what he calls the "shameless fabrications" of the American Press Association. Mr. Simonton is always an interesting correspondent, and we read his letters with pleasure and profit. But we have no room for these letters in our news columns. These publications on the part of Mr. Simonton are calculated to injure the Associated Press by giving prominence to the American Press Association. As the HERALD is one of the owners of the Associated Press we naturally object to anything which may affect the value of our franchise. Mr. Simonton must see that every letter he writes about the American Press Association aids the business of that concern. People who have never heard of it will begin to ask about it and to desire to read its news, and the consequence will be that the HERALD, the Tribune, the Express, the Sun, the Journal of Commerce, the World and the other papers will be compelled to buy the American Press Association's news, while, if Mr. Simonton had been wise and not yielded to the temptation of writing letters no one would ever have heard about it, and we should not be called upon to incur the additional expense of purchasing its news.

Mr. Simonton is not only a great letter writer, but before he became as opulent and powerful as he now is was a most industrious correspondent and reporter. In fact, we never knew a better reporter, and Washington remembers to this day his industry and vigilance and sterling honesty. This being the case he must keenly feel the fact that the Associated Press has not been as well served in its foreign news as the American Press Association. Take this extraordinary religious controversy in England between Mr. Gladstone and Archbishop Manning that bids fair to be the most important event in the religious history of England since the quarrel between Henry VIII. and the Pope. The American Press Association sent prompt and comprehensive despatches about it. Then the HERALD correspondent sent three columns by cable, which we printed on Sunday. But not one word from the Associated Press agent, who seems to feel that we keep him in London to tell us about the movements of the Prince of Wales, and who ignores events of world-wide importance. Now, if Mr. Simonton had been in London, he would have sent us this news, and would thus have beaten the American Press Association. We are very sorry indeed that Mr. Simonton is not in London.

Mr. Simonton should do two things immediately. First, let him resolve never to write a letter advertising the American Press Association. As a member of the Associated Press we protest against our agent building up the business of a rival. Second, let him see that the Associated Press is not beaten by the American Press Association. That will be a field for the display of his great ability. In this contest Mr. Simonton has our warmest sympathy and support, and in the end we trust he will win. But he must stop writing interesting and elaborate letters and give his whole time to the business for which we and our partners pay him—the gathering of news.

MR. SPEAKER BLAINE'S POSITION.—The Speaker wishes it to be distinctly understood that he is not a candidate for the Senate. Having contracted to serve the people of his district in the Forty-fourth Congress, and having been elected by them to fulfil this engagement, he says, "I could not be turned, even were the Senatorship offered, and of this I see no indication."

THE Evening Post makes a pretty reminiscence when it tells us that "the poet Richard H. Dana, Sr., of Boston, was eighty-seven years old on Sunday; and the fact is recalled by the press, in connection with his birthday, that when he was editor of the North American Review he received the poem of 'Thanatopsis,' written by William Cullen Bryant, then a resident of Massachusetts, and a youth of only eighteen years."

London has had a sensation in the letter line By the Indian mail came a missive addressed in a language with which the Post Office authorities were not acquainted. They sent it to the British Museum. No one there could read it, but they excluded from consideration all the ancient tongues and the Chinese language. It was in none of those. Finally it was read by a private gentleman at Bayswater, and was in Telegu and addressed to the Queen.

CENTRAL AND SOUTH AMERICA.

PANAMA, Nov. 7, 1874.

The general aspect of the Republic at present is that of peace, and to judge from the tone and information conveyed in the messages of the Presidents of the different States of the Union, every State is more or less progressive and bent on promoting as far as possible public instruction and establishing communication by means of railroad and telegraph. The State of Cundinamarca has at present 342 schools and 13,321 pupils of both sexes, against 108 schools and 5,696 pupils in 1871.

AMERICAN CLAIMS TO BE SETTLED.

The claim of the United States Minister for the capture of the steamer Montijo is to be decided by a tribunal of arbiters. Mr. Bendex Koppel will act for the United States government and Mr. Mariano Tanco for that of Colombia. In case they do not agree Hon. Mr. Bunch will be referred to as a third party.

Costa Rica.

PANAMA, Nov. 7, 1874.

The steamship Ancona arrived last evening with later dates from Central America. The only news of interest is another attempt at revolution in Costa Rica, of which the following are the particulars:—

A REVOLUTIONIST MOVEMENT.

On the 17th October, about midnight, a revolutionary party, made up of Nicaraguans, Salvadoreans and Costa Ricans, attacked and captured the cuartel at Punta Arenas, proclaiming at the same time Señor Joaquin Fernandez as President, he having previously landed at that port with his family under the amnesty. At the time of the capture the commander and his immediate subordinate were absent from the cuartel, but, having induced two officers and five soldiers to follow them, they stationed themselves in a neighboring building and kept up a lively fire for four hours against the revolutionists.

After this they embarked on the steamer General Cañas and proceeded to San Lucas island, and from thence to Bebedero (the chief port in Guanacaste Province), where they sent to Liberia, in the same province, for troops.

THE CASUALTIES

in the encounter were three wounded on the side of the government.

The revolutionists' loss is not stated.

THE LEADER OFF AGAIN.

It would seem from the official accounts that the inhabitants disarmed the rebels, and that the Señor Fernandez had to leave with his followers the next day (18th), on the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's steamer Mohango, for some port north in a neighboring republic, having taken with him some $11,000, which he found at the Banco Nacional Agency.

A MORE SERIOUS ASSAULT.

At about the same time the cuartel was taken by a party of Nicaraguans and Costa Ricans, who had pronounced in favor of Señor Fernandez. The affray here was of a more serious nature, the government stating its loss at nine killed, and a greater number wounded.

The President had gone to Punta Arenas.

It is known that peace has been completely re-established.

Peru.

On the 21st of October the people in Peru were wondering at the activity displayed by the government squadron, which had been distributed along the coast, and the ram Huascar was sent to sea under sealed orders. On the arrival of the English packet steamer at Callao from the south the news came that the Talisman, a large steam vessel, had left Talcahuano under English colors, and proceeding to Quintero, a port about fifteen miles north of Valparaiso, had there received on board a number of discontented and exiled officers and civilians, who, after the fall of Balta, sought refuge in the neighboring Republic.

The consuls of Peru acquainted their government of the circumstance, as the expedition evidently seemed destined to effect a landing on some part of the Peruvian coast.

Up to the day of the steamer's leaving Callao no news of the capture or whereabouts of the Talisman had been received.

CAUSE AND CONSEQUENCES.

The expedition is thought to have some connection with a revolutionary outbreak at Arequipa on the 23d ult., which was put down by the prefect and several conspirators killed. The leader of the movement, Major Vargas Machuca, being fatally wounded, the government of Peru may be considered firmly established and likely to conclude its constitutional period.

Chili.

An usually heavy earthquake was felt in Chili on the 26th ult., about twelve minutes after midnight. Its duration was about thirty seconds, and the direction from east to west. Much alarm was caused in Valparaiso and Santiago. All the public clocks stopped, and the walls of some of the churches and houses were damaged.

The director of the National Observatory found that the shock was followed by an increase of the thermometer of 2 2-10 degrees.

Spanish Movements in Central America.

PANAMA, Nov. 7, 1874.

News has been received in Bogota that two Spanish men-of-war, the Gironda and Tornado were about to bombard Laguayra, and had created great excitement there, the press urging it to be the duty of Colombia to aid Venezuela.

The Colon Telegraph Cable.

PANAMA, Nov. 7, 1874.

The Hamburg steamer Vandalia picked up the Colon cable with her anchor on the 4th inst. in the port and caused it some slight damage, but not sufficient to seriously interrupt the business of the line. The necessary repairs were speedily made, and messages are being received and forwarded.

ANOTHER INDIAN ROUT.

Two Hundred Cheyenne Warriors Whipped by One Hundred Soldiers.

BLOODY FIGHTING.

Rescue of Captive White Girls from Savage Slavery.

HEAD OF NORTH FORK OF McCLELLAN'S CREEK, Texas, Nov. 9, 1874, Via FORT DODGE, Kansas, Nov. 16.

To-day, near this spot, Lieutenant Frank D. Baldwin, of the Fifth United States infantry, chief of scouts, commanding a detachment, composed of Lieutenant S. Overton's Company D, of the Sixth cavalry, and Lieutenant H. K. Bailey's Company D, of the Fifth infantry, while on a scout, had a brilliant engagement with about two hundred of the Cheyenne Indians, who were before handsomely whipped by Captain H. Farnsworth, of the Sixth United States cavalry, on the 6th inst. To-day, from half-past eight A. M. to half-past one P. M., ninety-eight men and a howitzer fought stubbornly and bravely against more than two hundred Indians. After charging their abandoned camps, under a galling fire, he captured their whole outfit, driving the Indians eight miles from the last position of those successively taken by them. On the hilltops, hard and well won prizes, left as trophies of victory, were recovered by Lieutenant Baldwin, commanding, in the persons of two little starved young girls, aged five and seven years, named Germon, whose father, mother, eldest sister and brother were recently massacred in Kansas while going to Colorado as settlers. Two remaining sisters, aged thirteen and fifteen years, are yet held by the Indians, doomed to worse than death.

WHITE CAPTIVES,

Two desperate charges were made by the Indians to regain them. They were bitterly repulsed and handsomely charged by Lieutenant Overton's company. The federal troops got close enough to use pistols advantageously. The forces were so much used up after this that the men had to fight afoot. About 80 or 100 trophies were captured and much property destroyed. The camp numbered from 400 to 500, counting women and children. The pursuit lasted for twenty miles, and was not abandoned until four o'clock P. M., when it became useless and impossible for it to be continued longer. The horses were worn out, having had no forage for four days and having marched 230 miles since October 28, and 500 with the present week.

No losses were sustained by our side. Four Indians are known to have been killed. How many more is not ascertained, but at least twenty must have been slain. The bloody state of the field attests that the Indians dragged off rapidly a number of their wounded comrades. Colonel Redmond, Price's battalion, Eighth cavalry, and Major C. E. Compton's command (Sixth cavalry) were at remote supporting distances, left and rear, as also was General Davidson, with the Tenth cavalry. Captain C. D. Neill, Tenth United States cavalry, with one hundred picked men from Davidson's command, took up the trail and pursued the savages, who had gone to the Staked Plains.

Major Marris and Colonel Hartwell, Eighth cavalry, with companies K and L, have gone to the Adobe Walls for effective work, by order of General Miles.

LOUISIANA.

After the Election—Troops to be Withdrawn from the State House—The Kellogg Government Still to be Protected.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 16, 1874.

Early this morning a despatch was received from Walker Feran, representing the McEnery government at Washington, by H. N. Ogden, McEnery's Attorney General, stating that to-day the President would order the Commanding General to withdraw the federal troops from the State House, where their presence is understood to give courage to the Returning Board, and instructing General Emory to refrain from using the federal army to protect either party. Early in the afternoon officers of General Emory's staff stated that they had no such information. To-night, as I entered Governor Kellogg's residence to verify this rumor, I encountered Captain O'Reilly, an aid of General Emory, and we entered together. After Captain O'Reilly had retired Governor Kellogg stated to your correspondent that the President had ordered the

from the State House, but he denied that the order indicated a withdrawal of federal protection from his government. He stated, however, that he had a long despatch, which he showed your correspondent, and which covered five telegraphic blanks, from Washington on the subject, and that the federal forces would go into winter quarters in this city; but to a direct question whether these troops would be kept here to protect him the Governor made an evasive answer. Since then I have conferred with high military authority, which states that the troops will, in obedience to the order of the Secretary of War, be withdrawn from the State House at six o'clock to-morrow morning, but that the order to sustain Kellogg as the de facto Governor with the aid of the troops has not been touched in to-day's telegraphic orders.

THE BOSTON BAPTISTS.

Split on the Open Communion Question.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 16, 1874.

The Baptist ministers of Boston held a lively meeting to-day to condemn the action of certain of their number who passed in the Convention two weeks ago resolutions indorsing the action of the Long Island Baptist Association in disfellowshipping the Lee avenue Baptist church for open communion practices. Considerable feeling was manifested, and quite a split upon the question has occurred. Positive action was deferred.

LAST TRIP OF THE SEASON.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 16, 1874.

The steamer Maggie Bell cleared last night on her last trip of the season with eight Canadian and three American barges, laden with lumber, for Burlington and Albany.

THE NEW DEPARTURE.

Mr. Washburne Summoned to Washington.

The President Calls to His Side His Earliest and Truest Friend.

A NEW CABINET PROBABLE.

Are We to Have Statesmen and Not Staff Officers?

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16, 1874.

There is an apparently well grounded rumor in circulation here that on Thursday last the President sent a cable despatch to Hon. E. B. Washburne, our Minister to France, requesting his presence in Washington at the earliest possible moment.

It is understood that Mr. Washburne's advice will be taken as to the time and method of the proposed new departure of the administration, which the recent canvass renders necessary.

THE ARKANSAS IMBROGLIO.

Governor Garland Determined on Smith's Arrest—Action of the Legislature—The Congressional Committee.

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 16, 1874.

The city has been unexpectedly quiet to-day, all parties seemingly having concluded that President Grant would speedily settle the gubernatorial contest and prevent a conflict between the friends of the rival governments. Diligent search is being made by the Garland authorities for Lieutenant Governor Smith and Secretary of State Wheeler. The friends of the Smith government are hopeful of a favorable decision. It is conceded here that the precedent of the Dorr (Rhode Island) case is favorable to Smith. Governor Garland to-day sent a message to the Senate recommending the passage of an act authorizing the offering of a large reward for the apprehension of Smith and Wheeler, the present laws only authorizing a reward of $200. A joint resolution was offered in the Senate indorsing Garland's course and pledging all necessary aid. The resolution was referred to a select committee.

INTERVIEW WITH GOVERNOR GARLAND.

In an interview with Governor Garland to-day he informed your correspondent that he was taking and would continue to take steps to have Smith and Wheeler dealt with according to law, and hoped additional authority would be granted by the Legislature. He said he had not communicated with the United States authorities and would not do so.

Governor Smith sent a despatch to President Grant to-day claiming that Baxter's treachery had as completely usurped the legal State government of Arkansas as did Penn's militia that of Louisiana; that he did not wish to precipitate a conflict unless forced to do so, and asked a favorable decision of the federal authorities to prevent anarchy and bloodshed.

Price, proprietor of the Republican, arrested on a charge of treason for publishing Lieutenant Governor Smith's proclamation, had a preliminary examination before the Circuit Court to-day, and was discharged although Garland's Attorney General and the prosecuting attorney of the Sixth Judicial Circuit made strenuous efforts to secure his conviction.

THE CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE.

But little was done by the Congressional Committee to-day. They will probably complete their labors and leave on Wednesday. Judge Poland, chairman of the committee, expresses surprise at the views of Congressman Saylor, of the committee, in regard to the Arkansas case, as reported in the Chicago Tribune of the 14th inst., and says it was in bad taste for him to express an opinion when he had failed to meet with the committee here and could know nothing of the evidence elicited. Republicans claim that the facts elicited by the committee are very damaging to the Baxter and Garland governments, while democrats think that Congress, since the late democratic victories, will not dare to interfere.

Sensational Stories from Washington Denied—Profound Peace and no Arrests.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 16, 1874.

The despatches from Washington reporting large assemblages of the adherents of Smith and hundreds of arrests by Garland are not true. Profound peace and satisfaction with Garland's administration exists everywhere in the State. Smith is still hiding, and no arrests whatever have been made.

No Action Taken by the President—Reports from Republican Sources—The Election for Members of the Legislature.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16, 1874.

No action has been taken on the proclamation of Smith, received by the President Saturday. Attorney General Williams, in conversation this morning, stated that nothing would be done before to-morrow, when the Cabinet meets, and the subject will be discussed.

Telegrams from republicans received here today from various parts of Arkansas represent that Smith's adherents continue arming and show determination to maintain their position. Smith's government will be organized either at Helena or Pine Bluff, where the republican element largely preponderates. The Garland government has made at least a hundred arrests thus far, including the editors of the Republican newspaper, on a charge of treason to the State.

THE ELECTION

of members of the Legislature under the Garland government, at which no republicans voted, took place October 13, and the election under the Smith government, in accordance with the old constitution, at which no democrats voted, took place early in November.

The President and Attorney General had a conference to-day on Arkansas affairs.

SENSATIONAL ACCOUNTS.

The following despatch was received here tonight by Senator Dorsey from Henry M. Cooper, Secretary of the Republican State Central Committee of Arkansas:—

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 16, 1874.

The excitement throughout the State is increasing. White Leaguers are patrolling the interior towns and visiting plantations, causing the greatest consternation among the colored people, and in many instances inflicting punishment. Many editors of republican papers have been arrested without warrant and put in prison, charged with treason, and bail refused. The republicans are still organizing for self-defence and can protect themselves in large towns and thickly settled neighborhoods. They unanimously sustain Governor Smith. The people do not sustain Garland. The Congressional committee will leave for Washington to-morrow. We hope for relief from Washington. If we cannot get that we must fight it out.

Views of the Contestants—Governor Garland on the Situation—Probability of Smith's Arrest.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 16, 1874.

The Evening Post and Mail has special despatches from Little Rock, Ark., from Governor Garland and Lieutenant Governor Smith, in which each presents his own side of the contest. Mr. Smith says the President will hear the case to-morrow, and thinks he will be recognized. Mr. Garland says, "A Legislature is at work under the new constitution, and the people acquiesce in and cordially support the government, and I intend to enforce its authority against all in the State who try to overturn and usurp it, to the utmost of my capacity. Come down and see what a splendid government we have. All is peace and quiet, except that half a dozen people are trying to create a disturbance, and I am trying to find them with warrants to bring them to punishment. The main disturbers are secreted and cannot as yet be found."

Another special says that the number of militia is increasing, and that undoubtedly if Smith is captured he will be assassinated.

EX-GOVERNOR SEYMOUR AND THE SENATORSHIP.

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 16, 1874.

The Utica Observer this afternoon publishes a letter from ex-Governor Seymour thanking the press of both parties for the kindly mention of his name in connection with the United States Senatorship, but declaring that he prefers to do his duty as a citizen in the walks of private life.

AMUSEMENTS.

Olympic Theatre.

This theatre opened the week with an entirely new and startling programme of novelties. The array of novelties was so extensive that we really have not space to give the catalogue in full. But we must not omit to make favorable mention of Sol Smith Russell, who, as an artist, compares well with Joe Jefferson, and reminds one of the best native character actors on our stage. Mr. Russell is destined to become one of the most popular (if he is not so already) American delineators on our stage. His representations last night exacted great applause, and demanded more encores than the efforts of any other performer. This brief notice of the Olympic, under its present auspices, should not be concluded without cordial mention of the endeavors of the vocalists, Miss Nully Pieris, Miss Alice Harrison and Miss Emma Day, to please the very large and respectable audience present. Gus Williams afforded evidence that he was a great favorite by reiterated calls. The "Fountain of the Innocents" is an especial feature of this remarkable variety performance, and the concluding effort, the drama of "To-Day; or, A Trip Around New York," in which the strength of the company, including Miss Alice Harrison and Messrs. Sam Rickey, Gus Williams and others took leading parts, was well received. A "Slippery Day" was very funny and kept the audience continually in a state of merriment. Altogether the programme presented last night at the Olympic may be pronounced a decided success. The performance, though funny, is not coarse, and can be witnessed with pleasure by even the most fastidious people.

The Lyceum Theatre.

The ever-favorite daughter of Mme. Angot made her appearance in English dress last night at this house under the care of Miss Emily Soldene and her merry blondes. There was a large audience to meet her, and the pretty little theatre looked cosey and bright. Lecocq's delightful music was well rendered by the company, which has improved considerably since the first performance. The choruses were given with vigor and perfect ensemble; especially the conspirators' chorus elicited warm applause. Miss Soldene assumed the rôle of Mlle. Lange, and gave with such spirit and success the song of Mme. Angot,

To sell fish was her calling,
Mere Angot was her name,

that it received the honor of an encore. It was given with all the dash and élan of the best French school of opéra bouffe. One of the great charms of Emily Soldene's acting and singing is its spontaneity. We feel that she enjoys what she does as much as the audience, and that she has thrown herself on the stage with enthusiasm. She's so jolly that she coaxes the most saturnine spectator into good humor almost without his knowledge. She was well supported by Miss Robson, who sang the rôle of Clairette Angot with archness and spirit. Her voice is very pleasant, and her rendering of the sedition rondo, "Time was when monarchy meant plunder," was deservedly encored. The duet, "Dear Days of Childhood, Time of Gladness," was also given with admirable taste and in a very spirited manner. The frenitz of Mr. Wallace was exceedingly funny, rivalling the agility of the Parisian creator of the rôle. Mr. Marshall, as Louchard, was as disagreeable a looking customer as the original must have been under the Reign of Terror. The appointments were remarkably rich and some of the scenes were delightful color pictures. Indeed, the stage setting left nothing to be desired. It is not often that we have the opportunity of witnessing a performance of such even merit. It has the additional recommendation of being perfectly free from anything that could offend the most sensitive. It affords that portion of the public unacquainted with the French language an excellent opportunity of listening understandingly to a work with which they are all partially acquainted. The "Fille de Madame Angot" will be repeated nightly during the week.

Niblo's Theatre.

Mo-mo-ko-Washa! we want an American drama. Kehapakan, "there's millions in it." Klamatachcosney, Histoo, Cappolas, Asika, Skematzka, red men of the Warm Spring tribe, heroes of the lava beds, avengers of General Canby and capturers of Captain Jack, do ye hear? An American drama—the real article. "Ay, ay, sir," responds Captain Donald McKay. "We have been spending the summer and turning Captain Jack to some purpose in our big tent at Long Branch, Saratoga and other places, and, with the permission from our Great Father, we have entered on a fall and winter campaign among the theatres, and here we are at Niblo's, after 'The Deluge,' in a genuine American drama. By way of variety we call it 'Wild Cat Ned;' or, as you may say, wild scenes among the red men, hunters, white renegades and emigrants in the sage brush plains and among the volcanic canyons of Idaho and Oregon. How will that do? Walk in!" And, walking in, we were in time for the lifting of the curtain on Wild Cat Ned, a Nimrod wildfire as far above Cooper's hero as are the snow peaks of Oregon above the small hills of Kentucky. The first act opens with a modest introduction of the Warm Spring Indian braves, squaws and youngsters by Dr. McKay, and then we have a war chant and an Indian walk-round, garnished with inspiring war whoops, and then we have Wild Cat Ned's cabin on Silver Lake, and the tree bridge—the Indians after Ned—Captain Luke Ryan, a British deserter, and the Indian chief Lapta—a plot to secure the hunter's treasure, which Ned overhears—three cowards—a woman in the lake—Ned to the rescue—the hunter in love—the English deserters challenge Ned and they are badly beaten—treachery—Ned a prisoner—the hunters come in—the tables are turned—the Indians attempt to fire the cabin—escape of the hunters through a trap. Grand tableau!

This is all in the first act, and there are three other acts quite as marked as this by changing scenes, stirring situations, bad scrapes and timely rescues, war whoops and gunpowder. Mr. Waldon as Wild Cat Ned, Mr. Farwell as Luke Ryan, one of the British deserters; Mr. Mestayer as Lieutenant Jones, the other English deserter, and a cockney; Mr. Middleton as James Bludsoe, a reformed renegade; Mr. Munn as Josh Jurbin, first coward; Mr. France as Lapta, the Indian chief; and Miss Johnson as Susie Sampson. Miss Fox as Nettie Sampson and Miss Jones as Clara Stevens in the leading characters, divided the honors of the house, Wild Cat Ned, however, carrying off the lion's share by general consent. To the boys in the galleries the play was perfectly glorious, to the more critical spectators below it was amusing, and to all these real live Indians from Oregon were the redeeming element in this remarkable American drama, together with the genuine wild Western mountain scenery of Silver Lake and Snake River. The play will be repeated every evening till further notice.

Wood's Museum.

The Indian drama of "Little Rifle, or the White Spirit of the Pawnees," with Miss Alice Placide and Charles E. Emmet, better known in the Far West as "Dashing Charlie," in the cast, was produced at this theatre last night. The piece deals with the stirring adventures, hairbreadth 'scapes and startling situations which we are all wont to associate with life on the frontier. It is not devoid of fun, however, and, as usual, we have the nigger and Irishwoman as a kind of offset to the scalping and house burning propensities of the redskins. Miss Placide played the part of Little Rifle with much spirit, but Dashing Charlie's modesty amounted almost to tameness. Mr. Leffingwell played the part of a Western trapper far more forcibly even than the famous scout, and Miss Sandford made a good rollicking Irish girl. The drama belongs to that school of plays which requires plenty of fighting, a good deal of shooting, red light in abundance, startling situations and lots of fun to make it go well; and as it has all these, its production last night may be considered a success.

Brooklyn Theatre—"Alixe."

It is now nearly two years since Augustin Daly inaugurated his season at what is now known as the Globe Theatre, after the destruction of the original Fifth Avenue Theatre by fire, with his own American adaptation of the emotional French play of "Alixe." On that occasion the lady who appeared in the principal character won a great success, and last night, in Mrs. Conway's pretty little house across the river, she repeated her former triumph, supplementing it with the valuable experience and mature power which she has since gained. The Alixe of Miss Clara Morris is one of those dramatic impersonations that produce a magnetic effect on those who witness it. The play itself has all the faults of the French school of the period, and trades upon marital infelicity to an extreme degree. But the genius of Miss Morris, who has now reached the foremost rank among the celebrities of the American stage, is sufficient to raise even a more inartistic play to public favor. Her emotional power on the stage is very remarkable, and in every scene makes itself felt, the result of a strong mind, trained in the best dramatic school. The rest of the cast was very satisfactory, and the play was placed on the stage in the most creditable manner, under the supervision of the manager, Mr. John P. Smith. On Friday evening Miss Morris appears as Camille, with Mr. Frank Roche as Armand Duval.

Brooklyn Academy of Music—Miss Neilson.

The announcement of the performance of "Romeo and Juliet" at the Brooklyn Academy, with the charming artiste, Miss Adelaide Neilson, as the unhappy daughter of Capulet, was sufficient to fill that house last evening, a significant test of her popularity even in the non-theatrically appreciative City of Churches. In the balcony scene she repeated the triumph which she achieved in New York, and throughout the play she exhibited the qualities of a thoroughly accomplished actress. The rest of the cast was as follows:—Romeo, Mr. J. B. Barnes; Mercutio, Mr. Frank Evans; Montague, Mr. J. Henkins; Capulet, Mr. H. A. Weaver; Tybalt, Mr. E. F. Mack; Paris, Mr. W. A. Sands; Benvolio, Mr. D. Ralton; Balthazar, Mr. J. Brown; Friar, Mr. W. A. Sands; Apothecary, Mr. J. F. Duell; Nurse, Mrs. Sol. Smith; Lady Capulet, Mrs. Weaver. The play was handsomely placed on the stage, and was appreciated as keenly as on its first representation in New York.

Brooklyn Park Theatre—Mlle. Aimee.

Mlle. Marie Aimée appeared at this theatre last evening, before a crowded house, as Clairette, in the chef d'œuvre of opéra bouffe, "La Fille de Madame Angot." It is one of her best impersonations, and it lost none of its charms when transferred to a pious atmosphere. Mlle. Nardin is an excellent substitute for Mlle. Minelly as Mlle. Lange, and Kolletz is one of the best tenors in this style of entertainment we have had in this country.

Mlle. Aimée will play the title rôle in "La Perichole" on Wednesday evening. This is her last week in Brooklyn.

Evenings with the Great Composers.

A lecture on the above subject, with pianoforte illustrations, will be given by Mr. J. N. Pattison this evening at De Garmo Hall. The life and characteristics of Beethoven will be explained in the following manner:—1. Sonate Quasi una fantasia, op. 27, "Moonlight." 2. Andante, Con Variazoni, op. 35. 3. Serenata, "Adelaida," Mr. George Simpson. 4. Sonate, Pathatique, op. 13. 5. Sonate, op. 26 (known as the Lechnowsky Sonate).

Verdi's Mass.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16, 1874.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

An article having appeared yesterday (Sunday) in your highly esteemed paper under the heading of "Coulisses Chat," which does me great injustice, I rely on your impartiality to print in your next the following few true facts in answer thereto:—

First—I never had a vocal score from Mr. Strakosch.

Second—When the chorus parts of Verdi's "Requiem" were offered to me by Mr. Strakosch I first refused them, having no need of them, possessing myself thirty-two parts and seven scores.

Third—When Mr. Strakosch asked for my singers I told him he could have them, being ignorant at the time that Mr. Strakosch wanted them to sing for nothing, or nearly nothing ($3 per person, under the obligation of attending a number of rehearsals). I paid each of them $5 and more, and $1 extra for each rehearsal.

Fourth—My singers, when aware of the liberality of Mr. Strakosch, very unkindly refused to help gratuitously to fill his pockets. Very truly yours,

L. DACHAUER,
No. 147 East Sixteenth street.

Shakespeare's Historical Plays—Mr. Vandenhoff Invited to Lecture by New York Ladies.

The following correspondence fully explains itself, and announces to the lovers of Shakespeare a series of rare entertainments:—

NEW YORK, Nov. 12, 1874.

MR. GEORGE VANDENHOFF:—

SIR—We learn that you have completed a series of lectures on the historical plays of Shakespeare, with illustrative readings, in which we are assured you have embodied the ripest thoughts of a long and studious life. Recognizing the value of a knowledge of the great dramatist's works, not only in their relation to English literature but to English history, also your pre-eminent qualifications for the task upon which you have been engaged, we venture to express the hope that you will give the ladies of New York an early opportunity to hear these lectures at Association Hall, on such days as may best suit your other professional engagements. Very respectfully,

Mrs. William Astor,	Mrs. Morris K. Jesup,

THE SHAKERS.

The Approaching Convention at Steinway Hall—The Doctrines of Ann Lee To Be Fully Expounded—Interesting Topics for Discussion.

A mystery has hitherto surrounded the Shaker community, and, in view of the fact that their mission, ideas and religious belief are generally misunderstood, a convention is to be held at Steinway Hall on Sunday next, when Shakerism, with all its doctrines and peculiarities, will be fully set before the public. Among other features to be presented, a Shaker choir of twelve vocalists will sing at the commencement, between the lectures and at the close of the meeting. Elder W. F. Evans will conduct the proceedings. They are truly a singular people, and it may not be inopportune, in view of

to cite briefly a few of their chief characteristics. Although their property is common to all they believe idleness to be sinful, and hence every member who is able to work is employed at some labor. They devote great attention to the cultivation of medicinal herbs and vegetables, and of late have done an extensive business in the manufacture of brooms. The Shakers make their own clothing. They believe, among other things, that in the antediluvian period of human history God was only known as a Great Sprit; that in the second period He was revealed; that Jesus Christ in the third cycle made Him known as a Father; that in the last cycle, commencing with 1870, "God is revealed in the character of Mother, an eternal mother, the bearing spirit of all the creation of God." They believe, moreover, that all who marry and are given in marriage are "children of this world;" that they as Shakers are called to lead a holy and spiritual life, free from all sexual indulgence, daily dying to the generative nature, and thus becoming new creatures, who are able to comprehend the "mysteries of God." Another doctrine is the development of

A HUMAN BROTHERHOOD

in a community of goods, according to the example of Christ and His apostles. The second appearing of Christ "without sin into salvation" they believe to have taken place through Mother Lee in 1770. It may be mentioned that Ann Lee was the daughter of James and Jane Wardley, of Manchester, England, who were members of a society in 1847, an offshoot from the Quakers. In 1770 she professed to have received, by

A SPECIAL MANIFESTATION

of divine light, those revelations in virtue of which her followers have ever since given her the name of Mother Ann, and have regarded her as a person inspired by the Christ of the female order. Four years later, accompanied by ten members of the society, she emigrated to America. The Shakers claim that the necessity for a second appearance of Christ resulted from the dual nature of Christ and of the Deity which they believe exists. This second appearing of Christ they hold to be the true resurrection state, and repudiate a physical resurrection as repugnant to science, reason and Scripture. Physiology, they contend, is the basis of all religion, all human sickness being the result, they say, of some

PHYSIOLOGICAL SIN

against the teachings of Moses, direct or indirect. They hold to oral confession of sins to God in presence of one or two witnesses as essential to the power to forsake sin, and they also believe in the power of their members to heal physical diseases by means of dietetics and prayer. Altogether, the revelations of Ann Lee and others of their members and elders they regard as valid and important. These are but a few of the more prominent doctrines which will be expounded on Sunday next, when there will be three meetings—in the morning, afternoon and evening. The addresses will be delivered by Elders Evans, Albert Loomis and John B. Vance and Elderesses Harriet Bullard, Antoinette Doolittle, Thomas Smith and others. Among the topics to be introduced will be whether Shakerism would depopulate the world, and that true religion based on physiology secures salvation of both soul and body, supplying all spiritual and temporal wants. It will be submitted also that there are the earthly order, based on correct generation with co-operation, and the heavenly order or Christian celibacy, with communism, and that in the millennium the civil government will hold the land as common property and all labor will be performed by co-operation. The question of capital and labor will also be discussed and the Day of Judgment explained. An interesting session may be looked forward to.

TWO GREAT FUNDAMENTAL ORDERS,

METHODIST MISSIONS.

Appropriations to Domestic Missions Yesterday—Devastations of the Grasshoppers in the West—Suffering of the People—Methodist Fraternization in the South.

This committee convened yesterday morning. Bishop Andrews presided, and after the conduct of the religious exercises and the reading of the minutes the appropriations for domestic missions to the Conference was taken up and considered. Alabama received $8,500; Arkansas received $7,000, of which $1,500 for transfers; Baltimore, $5,000. The second of these amounts is the same as granted last year; the others are $2,000 less. California asked for $7,000, for which sum Dr. Gibson pleaded very earnestly. The Conference covers an area of three ordinary conferences, and had extensive mission work. The committee appropriated $5,000 therefor. Dr. Reid moved to combine the California German appropriation of $1,875 with this and have it all distributed by the California Conference, at its discretion. This was opposed on various grounds, and on vote was lost. Central Illinois Conference received $600; Central New York, $800—being $400 each less than last year; Central Ohio got $1,200—$800 less; Central Pennsylvania, $1,100—last year, $1,700; Cincinnati, $1,200—last year, $2,000. Colorado Conference asked for $7,000. There are but three stations in that Conference that pay their preachers a full salary. The church in Denver has seventy-five members, is self-supporting and pays about half the missionary contributions of the Conference. The people are building churches as fast as they can, but are not doing much for the support of the pastors, and $7,000 is as little as they ought to have this year. A part of their territory has suffered from

THE GRASSHOPPER PLAGUE.

The Episcopalians are building a large number of churches in that region, and the Methodists will, therefore, have to do more than they have done hitherto if they would keep their own. There are thirty-one missions in the Conference and no preacher gets more than $300, which is certainly little enough to any man to live upon. The committee appropriated $6,500 to this Conference. The Delaware Conference got $1,500—last year, $2,000; Des Moines Conference, $1,000—last year, $1,500. This Conference had not made representations of its needs to the district committeeman nor to the office, and if they suffer it is their own fault. Detroit Conference stood in a similar light before the committee. It was moved to make its appropriation $2,250, to which an amendment of $2,500, on the ground that there was nothing in its mission territory but "water, rocks and God," and everything else was imported. It got $2,250. East Maine Conference is very largely mission territory, and its needs are equal to those of any missionary conference in the West. It received $2,125—last year, $3,000. East Oregon and Washington Conference asked for $3,500—$1,000 more than last year. They have three missions widely separated, and no minister receives more than $600 salary. They should not have less than $3,000, and this sum was granted them. Erie Conference received $1,200—last year, $2,000; Florida, $4,000—last year, $5,000; Georgia received $8,500—last year, $10,500; Holston Conference, $7,500—last year, $8,000; Indiana and Iowa Conferences, $600 each—last year, $1,000. Kansas Conference asked for $5,000, which is an increase of $2,000 on last year's appropriation. The grasshoppers have eaten up every green thing in that land, and thousands of the inhabitants are returning from that section to the older States to winter. Droves of cattle, numbering 9,000, have been driven into Illinois to get food for them. Pork could be bought in this grasshopper-stricken land for one cent a pound. The swarms of insects have been so thick as to eclipse the sun in midday, so that a man could look upon it with the naked eye. The churches are, therefore, unable to do much, if anything at all, for their preachers. This country and conference has received from the Missionary Society within the last eighteen years $133,470, and it was argued that the people should do something better for themselves and not draw so heavily on the mission treasury. But their condition this year is exceptional. They have and they must live on their debts or on their credits for the next year until their crops come in, so that what is given now is to meet a present and pressing emergency. They will be even poorer next May than they are now. In view of all the facts before them the committee granted $4,000, which is $1,000 more than was appropriated last year. A jump was then made to the Troy Conference, to permit its delegate, Rev. Mr. Meredith, to advocate its claims, that he might return home to meet an engagement. It received $2,250—last year, $3,000. New Jersey Conference received $1,200, Newark Conference $1,200—last year $2,000 each; New York Conference $2,500, New York East Conference $2,500—last year $4,500 each; Kentucky Conference asked for the same amount it had last year—$7,500. Its territory is larger than the five conferences in Ohio. The people will not receive the ministrations of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. There are seven presiding elder districts and 18,000 white members in that Conference. There are immense regions in which there is no Gospel preaching at all, and in which no white minister has been since the war until lately, when some of the Methodist Episcopal Church went there. They are very poor, and yet Kentucky is an old State, an old conference, and its people who belong to any Church are Methodists, and yet we have to support them with missionary money from year to year. There must be something wrong, and Dr. Love thought the giving of this money helps to keep the Church there in poverty. This Conference has received over $115,000 in appropriations during the past twenty years. The Conference received $7,000. The committee then took a recess.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Upon reassembling the committee resumed the appropriations, and Lexington Conference (colored) received $2,500, the same as last year. Dr. A. S. Lakin, pleading for Louisiana, said that he had been bushwhacked, hunted through the mountains and shot at in the South, but he had escaped. He believes that man is immortal until his work is done. There can be no real affiliation between brethren of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and the policy of the latter is to compel, by a Jesuitry peculiar to itself, the withdrawal of the representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church, whose ministers go nowhere unless they are wanted. The loyal people of the South must have the ministry of the loyal Methodist Episcopal Church, and it would be dishonorable to that Church now to back out of any place where it has established itself. Ames church, in New Orleans, is the largest white church of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Louisiana. Its congregation, though large and respectable, is poor, and the church is in debt. The colored population of the State are building churches in various directions, and they ought to have not less than $8,000, which sum was granted to this Conference. It received last year $9,000. Maine Conference received $1,500; last year, $2,500. Michigan, $2,250; last year, $3,750. At this point Bishop Peck resigned the chair to Bishop Haven. Minnesota Conference asked for $12,000, but Mr. Backman, who represented it, pressed for $10,000, the same as they had last year. Its contributions were larger than the year before. It received $9,000. Mississippi got $8,000, instead of $9,500 granted last year. Nebraska, a portion of the grasshopper region, asked for $10,000, an increase of $3,000. This was opposed on the ground that those conferences were receiving aid from several quarters; but Chaplain Lozier and Rev. A. G. White, who are here on this mission, find that the preachers will not open their pulpits here to have the

CLAIMS OF THOSE PLAGUED CONFERENCES

presented to the people, so that comparatively very little aid is obtained in this way. The committee appropriated $8,000 therefor. Nevada got $3,000; last year, $4,000. New England, $2,100; last year, $3,500. New Hampshire, $1,500; last year, $2,250. North Carolina Conference got $7,500; last year, $10,000. Northern New York, $800; last year, $1,200. North Indiana Conference got $600; last year, $1,000. North Ohio, $900; last year, $1,500. Northwest Indiana got $600; last year, $1,000. Northwest Iowa, another strip of the grasshopper region, wanted $8,000; it received $6,000, an increase of $1,000 on last year's appropriation. Ohio received $1,200; last year, $2,000. Oregon got $3,000, a reduction of $500 on last year's grant. Philadelphia, the banner missionary Conference of the Church, which advanced its contributions $1,700 last year, because a crisis was on the missionary treasury, gave in $55,000. New York and New York East Conference fell off $7,500 last year, and sent in $88,500, instead of $96,000, as apportioned. Philadelphia Conference asked and received $4,000. Pittsburg got $1,500; last year, $2,500. Providence Conference $1,500; last year, $2,500. Park River, $1,350; last year, $2,250. Rocky Mountain Conference asked for $20,000, an increase of $6,000 on the amount granted last year. This was opposed and $10,000 was moved, but pending the discussion and action the committee adjourned by the expiration of the hours of session. They will sit again to-day at half-past nine o'clock and finish their work.

PULPIT AND STAGE.

Friends of Popular Amusements Rally to the Support of Theatrical Entertainments.

The many letters received by the HERALD growing out of the controversy in which Rev. Mr. Talmage has sought to array the pulpit against the stage, attest the deep interest the public take in the question of Sunday entertainment and the general subject of the moral and social influence of the stage.

Mr. Talmage in Burlesque.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

In answer to Mr. Talmage's denunciation of the stage I wish to recall an instance in which our consistent pulpit orator took a very prominent part. A year or so ago Mr. Talmage, on the stage of the Brooklyn Academy of Music, where plays from the high tragedy to the low comedy and the insipid burlesque have amused all kinds of audiences, and where the opera, with its indelicate argument and its fascinating ballet have swayed thousands of theatre-goers and wicked men of the world, on that identical stage, surrounded by all its theatrical appurtenances, in the name of our Maker burlesqued that most sacred and solemn of social and moral ceremonies by marrying two poor, ignorant (I can term them nothing else), country folks, decorated in the costumes of the last century and before a curious audience, who were taxed at the theatre ticket office fifty cents per head to witness this travesty of religion performed by our kind, sensational pastor.

I hope, for the sake of Mr. Talmage and his portion of the performance occasioned by his eccentric taste for doing peculiar things, that the happy couple have not or will not turn out anything save that which is pure and moral.

But, should a divorce ensue, for shame to Mr. Talmage and woe to the Tabernacle of which he is the anomalous light, for surely then just retribution will have overtaken those who forsook the temple for the playhouse to unite in holy wedlock, in the name of God and before his people, two loving hearts.

A BROOKLYN THEATRE-GOER.

Wanted, an American Censor.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

In common with other lovers of a pure drama, I avail myself of the privilege (which you have so kindly extended to the public) to express, through the medium of your enterprising journal, a humble opinion upon this question of "Sunday amusements."

It seems to be pretty generally acknowledged by the eminent divines, as well as by the other writers whose views have been given in the HERALD, that musical and dramatic entertainments, if kept up to a high standard, could not have other than an elevating influence upon listeners, even upon Sunday night. To my mind no sane man, unless his senses be clogged and dulled by prejudice, can have a reasonable doubt of the efficacy of good music as a restorer of calm to the weary soul, an assuager of grief and an inspirer of holy and pure thought. Shakespeare aptly tells us:—

The cause why music was ordained!
Was it not to refresh the mind of man,
After his studies or his usual pain?

Since, then, music is an undoubted recreation, in what more fitting manner, I ask, can tired humanity, after a six days battle with the toils and cares of busy life, receive healthy diversion than through its agency? The tendencies of the drama of a moral and instructive nature are in the same direction. As regards the matter of a falling off in church attendance, I think that no church wherein the needs of the general public are appreciated, and where the services are characterized by attractiveness, liberality and earnestness, need fear any diminution of the number of its worshippers. I have not the slightest doubt that such churches as the Revs. Beecher and Hepworth's would be just as crowded every Sunday if places of public entertainment were also open on that day. A church-goer who will desert the shrine for the theatre must surely find very little in the services worth remaining for. To such churches and their creed, the words of a dramatic author fitly apply:—

That zeal must needs be very weak and faint
That lets the votary forsake his saint.

Now, allowing that entertainments of a high character on Sunday are unobjectionable, nay, desirable, the only difficulty to be encountered is that which the Rev. J. Hyatt Smith would so properly impress upon us—viz., where the line is to be drawn between what is respectable and what is not.

There would seem to be but one way in which this difficulty can be obviated, by the establishment of what the American stage is so sadly in need of—an intelligent censorship. Aside from the Sunday question this would prevent representation, even upon week days, of filthy and demoralizing plays. Let the theatrical and literary people form themselves into a body and, laying aside all petty jealousies, select some leader of recognized ability in the world of letters as a censor, and then, if such a thing be possible, the State might invest him with the power of practically suppressing all immoral and degrading exhibitions. Special rigidity might be exercised by the censor in permitting none but the highest class of entertainments upon Sunday. By this means two important results might be attained—first, our stage would be freed from such filth as the "can-can," as well as French immorality of a more pretensive nature; second, we could be furnished with a series of much-needed Sunday dramatic and musical performances of an unobjectionable quality. OBITUARY.

Daniel Stahl, M. D., Surgeon and Lieutenant Colonel, United States Volunteers.

Daniel Stahl, who died October 26, 1874, at Baden-Baden, Germany, was born in Hesse Cassel, Germany, in 1806, came to this country at an early age; studied medicine at Philadelphia, Pa., after which he settled at Vincennes, Ind., at which place he married and became a professor in the medical college of that city. In 1840 he removed to Quincy, Ill., where he continued to reside until some three years ago, when he visited Europe with a view to travel and recreation. A few years prior to the breaking out of the rebellion he retired from professional practice and took his children to Europe in order that they should enjoy the advantages of instruction from the best foreign teachers. The first call to arms in 1861 found him in the vanguard of his country's defenders. He entered the military service in his professional capacity in the Tenth Illinois infantry, served in the forces under General Grant, and was present at the battles of Belmont, Fort Donelson, Shiloh, siege of Corinth, the subsequent sanguinary battle of Corinth fought between Generals Rosecrans and Sterling Price, and many minor engagements of the ever-victorious Army of the Tennessee. Subsequently he served as surgeon of the Seventh Illinois cavalry, and in 1864 was promoted from the State military service to surgeon of United States volunteers, in which capacity he served in various responsible positions until the close of the war, after which he again retired to private life, having been distinguished during his five years' arduous military service by untiring zeal, fidelity and courage in the discharge of his duties. On retiring from the service the brevet of lieutenant colonel was conferred upon him by the United States government in acknowledgment of his "faithful and meritorious services during the war." Dr. Stahl was simple and unostentatious in manner, polished and genial in intercourse, able and accomplished in the various branches and literature of his profession, ardent and impulsive in temperament, brave and generous in spirit, scrupulously jealous of his honor and reputation, faithful and untiring in the discharge of all duties, public and private. He died beloved by an extensive circle of friends in America and Europe.

Captain Byron S. Heath.

The latest news from South America by way of Panama, November 7, reports that Captain Byron S. Heath, of Chester, Ohio, died last September from the effects of the rarefied atmosphere at the summit of the Oroya Railroad. He was one of the government engineers of Peru. Mr. Heath was born in the town of Chester, Ohio, in the year 1841. For the past eight years Captain Heath had resided in Peru, and had a very extensive acquaintance among the people of the northern and middle regions, on the coast, nor is it too much to say that, possessed of pleasing and popular manners, he formed friendships of a warm character wherever he extended his acquaintance. By profession he was an engineer, having at the early age of twenty-two been appointed an assistant engineer in the United States Navy, in which he served with credit and fidelity throughout the rebellion; a considerable period of the time he served on board the United States ship Louisiana, made memorable by having been selected by General B. F. Butler to demolish Fort Fisher on the Carolina coast. He subsequently became a copartner in inventing and constructing the naval torpedo vessel Spraytenderfall. It was while serving with this vessel in the James River, and at the time the confederates sent down their entire fleet of ironclads and other vessels to destroy the federal ships then lying in the river, that Captain Heath performed such signal service as to be complimented in writing by the commander of the federal fleet. Probably it was the first occasion in naval history when an engineer commanded his ship in battle, which he then did. At the conclusion of the rebellion Captain Heath resigned his commission in the navy, life at sea being distasteful to him. For several years thereafter he was engaged in a professional capacity at the Rositas oil wells, near Tumbez, in Peru, resigning which also, he for two or three years engaged in railroad operations, which at that period were exciting general attention among men of energy and enterprise. Works of importance and difficulty on the Lima and Huacho, the Eten and Ferenafe, the Oroya and Huacho and Sayan railroads, attest the industry, energy and intelligence displayed him. In the spring of 1872 he was appointed by the government of Peru to the staff of its engineers, in which position he remained until but a few months prior to his sudden and untimely death. His remains were taken to Lima and committed to their final rest at Bellavista, in the Protestant cemetery, whence they were followed by a large concourse of former friends of all nationalities.

Rev. H. N. Gillespie.

Rev. H. N. Gillespie, a faithful and most accomplished priest of the Catholic Church, died at Notre Dame, near South Bend, Ind., on Thursday, November 12. He was born at Brownsville, Pa. His early years passed without incident. He was sent to Notre Dame to complete his studies, having accomplished which he received the degree of A. B. in June, 1849, being the first graduate, in course, of the University. In 1851 he entered the novitiate of the Congregation of the Holy Cross, and began his theological studies, fulfilling at the same time the duties of professor of mathematics in the college. In 1854, having made his religious profession in the preceding year, he was sent by his superior to Rome to complete his theological course in the schools of the Eternal City. This he did, and was ordained priest on the 29th day of June, 1856. Having returned to Notre Dame Father Gillespie was appointed Vice President in 1856, which position he occupied till 1859, when he was appointed President of St. Mary's College, Chicago, Ill. In 1860 he was recalled to Notre Dame, and again filled the post of Vice President. In 1863 he was sent to Paris, where he remained a year, and then being summoned to the mother house of the congregation at Mans, remained till the summer of 1866, when he returned to Notre Dame. For several years past Father Gillespie performed the duties of master of novices and was for some time editor of Ave Maria, one of the leading Catholic magazines of this country. A particular interest centres around his death from the fact of his being the first graduate of the University, whose interests he has since done so much to promote. At the time of his death Father Gillespie was in the forty-third year of his age.

The Archbishop of Florence.

The Italian journals of the 3d of November announce the death, on the 27th of October, of Mgr. Limberti, Archbishop of Florence. He had dined at his villa in company with M. Pacini, his chamberlain, when he was suddenly seized with a shivering fit, and called for his cloak to wrap round him. Shortly after he ceased to speak, and in half an hour he was dead. The deceased prelate was born at Prato on July 15, 1821, and was consecrated Archbishop of Florence in the cathedral of that city, by the hands of Pius IX., on August 23, 1857.

Count Andreas Zamoyski.

The death is (November 4) announced at Cracow of Count Andreas Zamoyski, one of the richest proprietors of Poland. He was Minister of the Interior in the Polish revolutionary government of 1831. In after years he founded the Vistula Steamship Company, the Polish Land Debenture Bank and the Polish Agricultural Society. In 1863 he was expelled from Poland by the Russian government.

THE GLENDENNING TRIAL.

The Defence Contending Against Publicity and the Prosecution Favoring It.

The Church of the Scandal in Jersey City wore a very sombre appearance yesterday. The group of gentlemen composing the Presbytery and a few reporters were the only tenants. The attendance of presbyters was larger than on any previous day.

Edwin A. Bailey testified that Mr. Glendenning was at his house on the 13th of July last; he came there at seven o'clock in the evening and stayed till after dark; think he was at my house on the 9th of July. On cross-examination he said he was not sure about the date.

Charles L. Corbin, of Stelton, N. J., testified: know Miss Haskins; she was employed in my family; on the 8th of October last she made a statement as to what she heard from Miss Pomeroy, whom she attended; she said that while Miss Pomeroy was ill Mrs. Miller called on her one day and whispered to her, and then walked away; Miss Pomeroy said, "There, she wants twenty-five dollars more, and that is

THE LAST MONEY

I have; she got ninety-five dollars before from me that I earned in the church;" Miss Pomeroy told Miss Haskins about the same time that she was in great distress in consequence of an interview she had with Mr. Miller; he told her that if she did not talk so and so to the lawyers, he would have Mr. Dudley (Overseer of the Poor) come and take her to the poorhouse.

On cross-examination witness testified that Miss Haskins stated that Miss Pomeroy declared that Mr. Glendenning was the father of her child; when asked if Miss Haskins made the statements voluntarily and without any questioning on his part, the witness said that he remarked that some of Mr. Glendenning's friends believed that Miss Pomeroy was under the influence of the Millers in the statements she made.

The testimony of Dr. Willard Parker, of New York, taken by commission, was read. He discussed the causes that led to Miss Pomeroy's death and the effect of her physical diseases on her mind. He was of opinion from all the information submitted to him that she died of pneumonia. Under his theory of the case the brain was so affected that the person was most likely to reiterate statements previously made. The following question was put:—Would a seduced woman's statement under such circumstances as to the

be regarded by you as satisfactory evidence against that man? A. I should receive the statement of one, situated as I understand this woman was fifteen or twenty minutes before death, with very great doubt, on the ground of her nearness to death by this disease; if it were some other disease her faculties might be clear to the last.

Q. If her mind was clear one-half hour before death, would it be an extraordinary case? A. It would; I do not now recall any such case.

The motion in regard to the secret session was reconsidered. Mr. Moore moved, at the request of Mr. Glendenning, that the officers of the church be admitted during the summing up. Mr. Ammerman was in favor of throwing open the doors to all. Mr. Moore was opposed to this. He said that during the tumult on Friday

A KNIFE WAS BRANDISHED.

Dr. Riggs, for the prosecution, said that a great advantage had been hitherto gained by the full and free reports published in the papers, and it gave confidence to the public mind that the Presbytery were acting honestly. That advantage would now be lost if the gentlemen of the press were excluded during the summing up. Mr. Dod, for the defence, protested against the admission of the press during the summing up. On behalf of his client he had many things to say which it would be highly improper to have sent broadcast over the country. Dr. Eddy moved that the press be admitted during the summing up. On a close vote the motion was declared lost.

The reading of Glendenning's testimony on cross-examination was then taken up and occupied the remainder of the session. If Mr. Dod cannot procure the attendance of any more witnesses he will close for the defence to-day, and then the argument on the admission of rebutting testimony will be resumed.

THE GERDEMANN SCANDAL.

Preliminary Examination of Father Gerdemann—Amount of Money Alleged to Have Been Received—The Accused Admitted to Bail.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 16, 1874.

A great crowd attended the hearing of the Gerdemann case at the Central station. Some of the crowd were quite noisy, and Alderman Carpenter, who heard the case, cautioned the witnesses that under no circumstances could any violence be indulged in and that no insulting language would be allowed. District Attorney Mann, for the Commonwealth, proposed to prove that the defendant had received money for the express purpose of erecting a church. In this manner he had accepted about $150,000, with a portion of which he has purchased drafts in Europe to the extent of $100,000, and which he proposed to enjoy on the other side of the water. In reply to questions by Mr. James H. Heverin, counsel for the prisoner, Mr. Mann, stated that the money had been received by authority from Bishop Wood.

THE DEFENCE.

Mr. Heverin argued that as the church was not chartered by the State, the action against Gerdemann, as trustee, would not hold good, to which Mr. Mann replied that a man had no more right to rob the Catholic Church than that of any other denomination.

After the examination of witnesses, proving the receipt of money as trustee, the prisoner was held in $10,000 bail to await trial for embezzlement. Bail was promptly supplied and he was liberated. Several prominent members of the Young Men's Christian Association were present to furnish bail.

PEDESTRIANISM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

You will see by the extracts from Chicago papers which I send you that a match has been made by Daniel O'Leary to walk fifty miles in eight hours and forty-five minutes. This is venturing a little too much I am afraid, yet O'Leary may accomplish the wonderful feat. He has beaten Weston, but I do not consider that much. O'Leary is a book pedler and does a great deal of rapid and continuous walking in his business, and he is represented as being in excellent condition. Fifty miles has never been walked in the time O'Leary has undertaken to do it. The best time that ever fifty miles was walked in England by a professional pedestrian was nine hours, thirty-four minutes and three seconds, and the best by an amateur was nine hours, fifty-eight minutes and five seconds. We have no fifty mile record in this country. O'Leary's match will come off to-day. Yours truly,

J. R. JUDD, Professional Trainer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14, 1874.

PEDESTRIANISM—O'LEARY AGAIN.

Chicago can boast of being the most enterprising city on the continent, and she can also boast of producing the greatest walker—Mr. D. O'Leary—at present in the world. Weston has not only been beaten by O'Leary, but he does not dare walk a match with the Chicago champion. O'Leary now proposes to outdo himself, and on Saturday the 14th inst. will give an exhibition of his pedal powers at the West Side Rink. At that time Mr. O'Leary will walk fifty miles in eight hours and forty-five minutes—a feat which, if he accomplishes it, will stamp him as the champion par excellence, not only of America, but of the world. The walk will commence at one o'clock P. M. and continue for eight hours and forty-five minutes consecutively. It will be a great feat, and one which all ought to see.

PEDESTRIANISM—A HARD TASK.

O'Leary has concluded to accept Libby's proposition, and will attempt next Saturday to walk fifty miles in eight hours and forty-five minutes. The following document was signed by these principals yesterday:—

We, Daniel O'Leary and A. H. Libby, do this day attach our signatures to the following articles of agreement, viz.:—Libby to bet the sum of $100, and to hire the track, pay expense of advertising, against O'Leary's $100, that he (O'Leary) cannot walk fifty miles in eight hours and forty five minutes consecutively. No one will be allowed on the course during the walk except two attendants, the walk to be fair heel and toe. One caution only will be given, and on second will be ruled out. O'Leary to be on the track at the West Side Rink, between the hours of one and half-past two P. M., Saturday, November 14, 1874. Judges to be chosen on the track.

ALEX. H. LIBBY.
DANIEL O'LEARY.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11, 1874.

Died.

LOVEJOY.—In Brooklyn, on Monday evening, November 16, 1874, Mrs. FANNY LOVEJOY, relict of Ira Lovejoy, aged 84 years.

Relatives and friends of the family are invited to attend the funeral, on Wednesday, the 18th inst., at one o'clock P. M., from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. J. B. Jenkins, 210 Monroe street, Brooklyn, without further notice. The remains will be taken to Hudson, N. Y., for interment.
